Reds Capture Pohang and Yongchon; Drive Puts Yanks' Taegu Base in Peril

Voters Have 3 Choices For Fairfax Government

Court Orders Ballot Offering Executive, Manager or Present Type in County

Fairfax County Circuit Court Judge Paul E. Brown yesterday gave three choices to voters in a referendum November 7 on possible changes in the county's government.

The judge accepted a form of ballot that permits the voters to (1) retain the present executive secretary form of government, (2) change to the county executive form, or (3) change to the county manager form.

In this respect, he followed the wishes of the county's board of supervisors, although an earlier citizens' petition asked that the voters be allowed simply to say yes or no on adoption of the county manager form.

Asked by Supervisors

The ballot calling for the three alternatives was asked by the supervisors last Thursday. It was recommended to them by a 21-member commission appointed last April to study all forms of government available to the county.

In accordance with State law amended last winter, the ballot will ask voters (1) if they favor a change in government, and (2) if so, whether they prefer the county executive or county manager plan.

In answer to the first question, voters will mark one of two boxes next to the words "for" and "against." Those voting for a change will then mark a box next to their choice in question two, whether county executive or county manager.

2100 Petitioners

Attorney Edgar Prichard, representing the 2100 petitioners who originally asked a referendum on a changeover to the county manager plan, said at yesterday's short hearing his clients "could not consent to or object to the recommendation of the supervisors." However, Judge Brown pointed out that the supervisors acted properly in requesting the joint ballot by a formal resolution adopted subsequent to the original petition.

Judge Brown refused to hear arguments by Edward T. Gibbons, a representative of the county's Taxpayers Advisory Association, contesting the legality of the proposed ballot. The judge said the purpose of yesterday's hearing was merely to set a referendum date and not to discuss the merits of the case.

'Apartment House Manager Bound, Robbed of $300

Two masked youths yesterday held up an Alexandria apartment house manager at gun point, taping her hands and mouth and escaping with more than $300.

Mrs. Rita Carper, resident manager of the building at 6 E. Nelson ave., was preparing dinner about 4 p. m. when the two robbers knocked at the door.

Upon opening the door, she said, she was forced back in the apartment and taped up. Most of the cash taken was tenants' rent money, she told police.

Mrs. Carper described the robbers as white, in their late teens, wearing dungarees, and of average build. Police said they made their getaway in an auto.

Board of Education Drops Five Lecturers From Roster

By Elsie Carper
Post Reporter

A committee of the District Board of Education yesterday dropped the names of five educators from a list of guest school lecturers after the background of three was questioned.

Action by the personnel committee came upon recommendation of School Superintendent Hobart M. Corning, who submitted a list of 35 educators to replace a list of 12 presented to the board last July. The five names were missing in the revised list.

It was learned that three of the lecturers were removed because persons with the same names are listed in the files of the House Committee on Un-American Activities.

The other two educators during the summer turned down the invitation to lecture at the city's in-service training program for teachers.

Dr. Corning said that information on the three was presented to him by a member of the school board who received it from the committee.

The memorandum was sent to Adelbert W. Lee, chairman of the personnel committee.

There was nothing in the information to indicate that any of the three was subversive, Dr. Corning said.

Dr. Corning said that before he submitted the list originally to the board, the names had been checked by phone with the House committee and found acceptable. The new list, he yesterday assured board members, had been checked in writing.

The school head said he had dropped the names because "I wouldn't run the risk of employing anyone about whom there is any question at all."

The Un-American Activities Committee refused to release the three names or comment on the material in the files.

The three persons involved, questioned by The Washington Post, denied they had ever had any Communist connections.

Representative Francis E. Walter (D., Pa.) ranking member of the committee, said that the information was turned over to the board "in confidence and was supposed to remain in confidence."

He said it was only for the guidance of board members.

"It was not forwarded to give board members something to hide behind," he declared.

One of the three names, it was learned, was a case of mistaken identity. Records of the Board of Education for July show that Dr. Corning submitted a name with an incorrect middle initial. The name of the person originally in-

Marines' Unit Asks Apology By Truman

'Navy's Police Force' Remark in Letter Arouses Criticism On Capitol Hill Too

By John G. Norris
Post Reporter

Demands that President Truman publicly apologize for "insulting" the Marine Corps came yesterday from Capitol Hill and Leatherneck veterans gathering here for a national convention.

The angry protests were directed at a letter Mr. Truman wrote to a Congressman a week ago, opposing a suggestion that the Marines be given representation on the Joint Chiefs of Staff.

Declaring the Marine Corps is simply the "Navy's police force" and will remain such as long as he is President, he added that "they have a propaganda machine that is almost equal to Stalin's."

Publication of the letter in the Congressional Record yesterday brought a quick and violent reaction. Officers of the Marine Corps League—an organization of 40,000 veterans and present members of the Corps which, by coincidence, opens its national convention here today—issued a statement declaring their "bitter resentment" of Mr. Truman's words.

Asks Apology

Clay Nixon, Seattle attorney and national commandant of the league, suggested the President come before his group at the Statler today and apologize for the "insult."

Gen. Clifton B. Cates, Marine Corps Commandant, had no comment, and neither did any other Marine or Pentagon official. Officers, however, pointed out informally that the official definition of the roles and mission of the armed services—approved by the President—gave the Marines a bigger role than "the Navy's police force."

They quoted figures to show the Marine Corps had far less personnel assigned to public relations work than the Army and Air Force.

Mr. Truman's letter, dated August 29 and addressed to Representative Gordon L. McDonough (R., Calif.) was put into the Congressional Record by the Congressman, along with his own letter urging that the Marines be given greater representation in the Pentagon High Command.

McDonough Comments

Commenting on the President's "startling" comparison of the Marines' "propaganda machine" with Stalin's, McDonough said:

"The only propaganda machine I have ever witnessed in the Marine Corps is the propaganda which was spelled out in the charging olive drab lines on Okinawa, at Wake Island and today on the shores of Korea."

Other Republicans also immediately seized on the incident as a political blunder to be exploited to the fullest.

Senator Bourke B. Hickenlooper (R., Iowa), urging that every American take exception to the statement, declared it "inconceivable" that Mr. Truman would compare the Marines with "the most cor-

Russia Hits U. S. Report On Red Flier

'Provocative,' Malik Asserts After Austin Reports Incident To U. N. Council

By Max Harrelson

LAKE SUCCESS, Sept. 5 (AP).—Russia today assailed as "provocative" a United States report that a Soviet lieutenant was part of the crew of a plane shot down off Korea after attacking a United Nations air patrol.

The report was laid before the Security Counsel by Chief United States Delegate Warren R. Austin, who said he had no information beyond the fact that the plane bore the Soviet Red Star and that a destroyer had picked up the body of a Soviet officer.

Soviet Deputy Foreign Minister Jakob A. Malik listened impassively as Austin read the report. He said nothing at first, but later in the session after a procedural wrangle, he made his brief reference to the plane incident.

Report Is Not Denied

Malik did not deny the report, but called it a "provocative statement made by General MacArthur and the War Department" to cover up the efforts of the United States to expand the Korean war by bringing in troops from other countries.

Malik said this is "one of a series of provocations" especially arranged for this meeting.

"The sea was chosen to conceal the sharp corners of the incident," he said.

This report, like other moves of the United States, Malik said, is designed "to hide the aggression of President Truman and to lead other countries into the conflict."

The report said that a twin-engine bomber, identified only by a Red Star, opened fire on a U. N. fighter patrol and was shot down off the west coast of Korea September 4.

Austin cited this as another example of the type of incident which the United States hoped to curb by its resolution calling upon all countries to use their influence to localize the Korean conflict.

He indicated the United States was much more concerned about what is now going on in Red China, especially in Manchuria which lies along the northern borders of Korea.

Want Peace Restored

Austin said the countries fighting against North Korea want to restore peace in the area, but "some of the actions of the Soviet representative in the course of the last weeks have raised doubts in our minds whether he supports this objective."

"The Soviet ruling circle seems to have been doing its best to increase tension between the Chinese Communist authorities and those members of the United Nations who are acting together to repel aggression in Korea," Austin said.

"I might note in this connection that the United States Government has been disturbed recently by reports of substantial rail and road traffic in that area of North Korea

FOE BREAKS THROUGH IN NORTH—Led by tanks, a North Korean Communist force (A) seized the highway town of Yongchon, 20 miles east of Taegu. (Another report said Allied forces re-entered the city). Pohang, port city on the east coast, also fell to the invader. Another Red drive was within 2½ miles of Kyongju. On the central front (B), another column of Reds was reported seven miles from Taegu on the northwest after United States troops withdrew from Kasan. In the south, United Nations forces pushed back the Reds in the Yongsan Masan area

Pusan Route Threatened; Yanks Gain In Center

Torrential Rains Hamper Air Arm Operations; Airfield Defenders Isolated

By Relman Morin

TOKYO (Wednesday), Sept. 6 (AP).—A fast-moving Korean Red offensive put the United Nations defense keystone of Taegu in direct peril today.

The Communists captured Yongchon, a vital highway point whose loss may make Taegu untenable. That success stopped traffic on the main highway, leading east out of Taegu, at Hayang, only 13 air miles away.

Loss of Yongchon, 20 air miles east of Taegu, was disclosed by military police shortly after the United States Eighth Army had acknowledged the Red capture last night of the east anchor port of Pohang.

Tank-led Reds, on the rampage in rainy weather which reduced the fury of the United Nations air force, were eating big hunks out of the 45-mile northern front from Pohang to Waegwan.

The offensive (1) completely caved in the northeast end of the line for nine miles from Kigye to Pohang (2) allowed Red breakthrough forces to speed 13 miles west to Yongchon and 10 miles south to the vicinity of Kyongju on the main Taegu-Pusan highway; and (3) pressured the United States First Cavalry division into limited withdrawals north of Taegu, at one point to within seven miles of that base.

[The United Press, from Kyongju, quoted an American officer as saying that "friendly forces" were back in Yongchon,

[The UP also quoted Lieut. Gen. Walton H. Walker, commander of the Eighth Army, as saying that the line in the Kyongju sector was "safe" and that the Southern front along the Naktong River to Masan was "secured."

["I feel we are going to be able to regain the ground we lost," Walker was quoted as saying, "and once back to the original line, we hope to hold it for our departure when we begin our counter-offensive when we have gathered sufficient resources."—Editor's note.]

The severed highway and rail line carries supplies fom Pusan to the First Cavalry, defending Taegu. The only other big highway left for that duty swings due south to Pusan behind the Naktong River front where the United

Loyalty Quiz Of Interior Chief Asked

Sen. Schoeppel Wants Investigation of Chapman and Straus

By the United Press

Senator Andrew F. Schoeppel (R., Kans.) yesterday demanded a Senate loyalty investigation of Secretary of the Interior Oscar L. Chapman and Reclamation Commissioner Michael J. Straus.

The demand was made in a Senate speech in which he also requested an investigation of John Hampton Randolph Feltus, public relations counsel for the Alaska Statehood Committee. He said Feltus was once a registered agent for Communist Poland.

Schoeppel said Chapman once belonged to a number of Red-front groups and that he and Straus struck out the loyalty affidavit sections of their oaths of office in 1945. He exhibited photostatic copies of the oaths, purporting to prove his charge.

He said the two men also tried to block economic recovery of the Chinese Nationalist stronghold of Formosa by refusing to release a Government geologist-engineer whose help was needed in completing an irrigation project on the beleaguered island.

He emphasized he was not accusing Chapman or anyone else of "disloyalty, treasonable acts or perjury."

"I merely ask that the facts which I present, which themselves raise the question, be fully explored and the officials and others involved be permitted to explain how these data, documents and actions can be reconciled with complete loyalty to the United States."

But he said an inquiry should be conducted in light of the fact that Hawaii, Alaska, Puerto Rico and the Virgin Islands—all under the Interior Department's jurisdiction—have assumed important strategic value in the cold war with Russia.

Nine Arrested In Theft of U. S. Checks

Secret Service and Postal inspectors yesterday arrested seven men and two women in connection with the theft and forging of Government checks sent in the mail.

The nine suspects have signed confessions, the Government said.

All were held for the grand jury under $1000 bond each in arraignments before United States Commissioner Cyril S. Lawrence.

D. C. Woman, 68, Found Dead After Fall From Train

The body of a 68-year-old Washington woman was found along the Pennsylvania Railroad tracks near New York and West Virginia aves. ne. last night.

Police identified her as Mrs. Eugene C. Pomeroy of 1255 New Hampshire ave. nw. Her husband told police she was returning with him on a Pennsylvania train from Trenton, N. J. when, a few minutes from Union Station, she left her seat to go to the ladies' room.

When the train pulled into the station, Mrs. Pomeroy could not be found. A search by station police failed to locate her. Finally, her body was discovered by an unidentified track walker. A Casualty Hospital ambulance physician pronounced her dead. The body was taken to the District Morgue.

Court Orders U. of Virginia To Admit Negro Law Student

CHARLOTTESVILLE, Va., Sept. 5 (AP).A three-judge Federal Court today broke Virginia's historic segregated-education barrier and ordered the University of Virginia to admit qualified Negroes to its graduate school.

In a brief hearing the court directed the university to admit Gregory Swanson, a practicing attorney of Martinsville, Va., who was denied admission last July because he is a Negro.

Swanson immediately said he would go ahead with plans to enter the school September 14 and would talk with officials about it this afternoon. He would thus become the first of his race to study at the university founded by Thomas Jefferson.

Virginia Attorney General J. Lindsay Almond, jr., had conceded there was no defense in the light of recent United States Supreme Court holdings.

Thurgood Marshall, of New York, chief counsel for the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, said he thought that six months would see parallel action in a number of southern States.

The injunction, granted in a hearing that required only 30 minutes, applies to Swanson and Negroes "similarly situated" but was restricted to the university's Department of Law. Virginia has no law school for Negroes but has contributed to the costs of their education in law in other States.

The injunction that was signed by Judges John J. Parker and Morris A. Soper of the United States Fourth Circuit Court of Appeals, and Federal District

After Talk With Truman

Let W. Germans Defend Selves If They Want, McCloy Urges

By Edward T. Folliard
Post Reporter

John J. McCloy, United States High Commissioner for Germany, said yesterday that the West Germans ought "to be enabled, if they want, to defend their own country."

Talking to reporters in the White House lobby, after a conference with President Truman, McCloy also contended that the Germans ought to be given a greater voice in foreign affairs and said he favored the sending of more United States troops to Germany if they are available.

He said that in East Germany, controlled by Russia, a force of 50,000 to 60,000 Germans is being given military training. The threat implied by this Bereitschaften, or organization of alert troops, he said, "cannot be ignored" and had to be "guarded against."

Speaking of the West Germans, McCloy said:

"It seems so difficult to say to these people that you can't share in the defense of your country if you are attacked. If that sounds like rearmament, then it's rearmament."

Told by a reporter that many Americans felt it would be a "calculated risk" to arm the Germans, McCloy said he didn't suppose any step could be taken without risk.

"In some manner or some form," he said, "the Germans ought to be enabled, if they want, to defend their own country."

McCloy, who was Assistant Secretary of War in World War II and president of the World Bank before going to Germany, said the more the Germans were represented in German domestic affairs the better, and he added they should be given a greater voice in foreign affairs.

In saying he favored the sending of more American troops to Germany if they are available, he emphasized this was really a question to be answered by the Joint Chiefs of Staff.

McCloy returned to this country last Wednesday to prepare for the meeting of the Council of Foreign Ministers in New York September 12, where the question of rearming the Germans is expected to be discussed.

McCloy said he and President Truman talked about a wide range of German problems, economic, political and social.

70,000 Men To Be Drafted In November

September, October Selection Require 50,000 Each Month

By Sam Stavisky
Post Reporter

The Army yesterday followed up President Truman's move to expand the armed forces by calling for 70,000 draftees in November.

Selective Service System already is processing two earlier Army calls, 50,000 in September and 50,000 in October. Military manpower experts expect 50,000 to 70,000 more draftees will be called up and inducted in December.

The new call was issued as the District prepared an official send-off for the first group of local draftees brought into military service since the outbreak of the war in Korea. Some 55 draftees will be sworn in at a mass induction ceremony at 3 p. m. today outside the District Building.

Vishinsky to Head Soviet Delegation At U. N. Assembly

LAKE SUCCESS, Sept. 5 (AP).—Russia will be represented at the forthcoming United Nations Assembly by her top-ranking diplomats, including Foreign Minister Andrei Y. Vishinsky, it was disclosed today.

Moscow dispatches said the Soviet Foreign Ministry had applied for a United States visa for Vishinsky as head of the delegation.

The disclosuse removed the last doubt as to whether Russia would boycott the 59-nation Assembly which opens in New York September 19.

Vishinsky's decision to head the Soviet delegation himself was in line with Russia's previous practice of being represented by her top-flight diplomats.

Fear of China Entering War Lessens Here

Diplomatic Reports From Peiping Reveal No Warlike Attitude

By Ferdinand Kuhn
Post Reporter

Communist China has no present intention of joining in the Korean war, according to diplomatic reports reaching Washington in the last few days.

These reports come from some of the few non-Communist governments that are officially represented in Peiping, the Communist capital. They have been relayed informally to the State Department, which has no direct contact of any kind with the Chinese Communist authorities.

Partly as the result of the new reports, official Washington is far less worried about Chinese intentions than it was early last week, when there was a real fear that the Peiping government might order its hundreds of thousands of trained troops into action to help the North Koreans.

The diplomatic messages picture the Chinese Communists as still deeply suspicious of American intentions, in spite of President Truman's repudiation of General Douglas MacArthur's message on Formosa.

The leaders in Peiping, being trained Marxists, have been taught to see the President as a puppet in the hands of soldiers and financiers. They still believe American commanders in the Far East are bent on pushing the United States into a war with Communist China.

But a suspicious attitude is very different from a warlike one, and the reports from Peiping give no hint that the Communist leaders are ready to take the plunge into war. Prime Minister Nehru of India is continuing to urge moderation on them, and appears so far to have succeeded.

It is not yet known what effect was created in Peiping by (1) the President's hint that the Seventh Fleet would be withdrawn from

McCarran Measure Debate Opens

Substitute Red Detention Bill Drafted Along British Lines

By Robert C. Allbright
Post Reporter

A "Red detention" substitute for sweeping registration features of the McCarran antisubversive bill last night was being drafted with Administration knowledge if not formal support.

The Communist internment measure, modeled after Britain's detention act of World War II, began to take shape as Senator Pat McCarran (D., Nev.) hit the Administration's original antisabotage bill as "window dressing."

McCarran's speech opened Senate debate on his catch-all subversive bill, tentatively slated for a vote this weekend.

Starting with a three-man Judiciary Committee minority, the move to replace the registration features of the McCarran bill with authority for Red seizures in time of emergency last night had picked up the support of 9 or 10 Senators.

Sponsors of the proposal, led by Senator Harley M. Kilgore (D., W. Va.) conferred yesterday in the office of Senate Secretary Leslie L. Biffle and plan to introduce the substitute today.

Proponents of the substitute privately conceded the idea is to "toughen" the Administration's own bill in a bid for enough votes to sidetrack key Mundt-Ferguson provisions of the McCarran bill.

The move obviously faces an uphill fight. With a large number of Senators anxious to make an anti-Red record in the dying days of the session, McCarran bill sponsors have been claiming enough votes to pass their own

'War Criminals'

Reds' Paper Sees Trial For Stassen

MOSCOW, Sept. 5 (AP).—The Literary Gazette said today that Harold E. Stassen, president of the University of Pennsylvania, will some day be among those tried as war criminals for having advocated an atomic war.

(Stassen said in a speech in Washington on August 15 that Russia should be notified that war will come to "Mascow, to the Urals, and to the Ukraine" if ::Communist imperialist forces" unleash further aggression anywhere in the world.)

The Soviet newspaper said others who will be tried before an international tribunal include:

RAF Marshal Viscount Trenchard (77-year-old director of the Goodyear Tire and Rubber Co. in Britain, who early in the second world war opposed opening a western front.)

Lieut. Gen. Sir Frederick E. Morgan, retired (one-time UNRRA chief for displaced persons in Germany, who last year was quoted as saying that Russia was intent on world conquest an dthat it was useless to possess atom bombs if they are not to be used.)

(Stassen was unavailable for comment on the article in the Literary Gazette, a weekly publication often critical of Western leaders. Stassen's secretary said: "I doubt if he will have any comment on this matter.")

U. S. Fliers Put on Red 'War Criminals' List

MOSCOW, Sept. 5 (U.P.).—The North Korean government is compiling a list of U. S. Air Force "war criminals" from names provided by American prisoners of war, Pravda, the Communist Party organ, reported today.

Sergei Borzenko, Pravda's correspondent in Korea, said the list already consists of hundreds of pages of names.

Borzenko quoted a U. S. Air Forces lieutenant as telling interrogators in his presence that "Lieut. Gen. Walton H. Walker, commander of the Eighth Army, ordered us to turn Korea into a wilderness."

Borzenko also reported to Pravda that thousands of prisoners in the Seoul jail had been killed by U. S. occupation authorities before the city was evacuated.

Describing the "incredible devastation of all Korea as the result of round-the-clock bombing," Borzenko said not a single city or village is intact along the "death highway" which runs from Seoul to the front.

LONDON, Sept. 5 (U.P.).—The fighter which shot down a Russian-marked bomber off the west coast of Korea may have been a British Seafare—sea-going version of the Spitfire—but not a single British government office would comment on it today.

Nor was there any word from Moscow on the incident.

The Admiralty, which should be the first to know, would only say it was being deluged with queries on "this wonderful theory" that a British carrier-based plane had brought down the Soviet bomber in the vicinity of the 38th parallel after the bomber had opened fire.

All the other offices, the Foreign Office, the Prime Minister's Office, etc., refused comment.

Naval sources said privately that the gravity of the issue depended on whether the twin engine bomber with the Soviet markings was equipped with radar.

If the plane had no radar, then it was understandable that the pilot would stray from his course, these Navy sources said. But if the plane did have radar navigational guides, there was little reason for it to wander over the heart of a fleet of warships.

But all this seemed to be in the realm of theory since the official report from Washington said the plane sank and only the body of one member of the crew was recovered. From identification on the body he was a lieutenant in the Soviet Air Force.

War jitters descended on Europe with the news.

"Caught red-handed," Rome's Giornale d' Italia said.

"Soviet bomber plane shot down while attacking U. N. vessels," said Vienna's Wiener Kurier.

"The mask has fallen," said Stockholm's Aftonbladet. "The Americans have acted as U. N. soldiers; the Russians as North Koreans."

Headlines in London newspapers, such as the Evening News: "British planes may have shot it down," reflected British concern.

which is adjacent to the Manchurian frontier."

A report by Gen. Douglas MacArthur Saturday indicated like concern. It said in the enemy rear areas a large troop concentration was reported near the northeastern border of Korea indicating possible recruitment of Koreans from Southeastern Manchuria.

General Debate Begun

After hearing Austin, the Council began its general debate on rival United States and Soviet resolutions on the Korean conflict. The United States proposal calls upon all countries to use their influence to keep the Korean conflict from spreading. It also condemns the North Koreans for defying the U. N. cease-fire orders. The Soviet resolution demands immediate withdrawal of United Nations forces from Korea.

Malik said the United States had used "blackmail, threats and the lowest slanders against the Soviet Union to get support for the United States policy." He said only the vassals of the United States had promised to send troops to Korea.

Malik stated again that he would veto the United States resolution.

The council adjourned at 6:59 p. m. (EST) until 2 p. m. (EST) Wednesday without reaching a vote.

French Delegate Jean Chauvel opened the general debate by announcing his support of the American resolution. He also said he would vote against the Soviet proposal. He spoke only a few hours after French Foreign Minister Robert Schuman had notified the U. N. France is sending a battalion of infantry to Korea.

Norwegian Delegate Arne Sunde said that if the United States resolution had come up before July 31 he would have doubted the need to spell out its steps for localizing the war. However, he said, the plane incident lends point to the need for repeating that aid should not be given to the North Korean aggressors.

Army Calls for 70,000 Men In November Draft Quota draft calls, District Selective Service is due to bring up 500 men for induction. The November call will add around 350 to the local quota.

Maryland, with an earlier quota of 1474, will now have to call up approximately an additional 1030 men. Virginia's September-October quota is 2177, its November quota will be around 1524. Virginia's first inductees—eight men from Grenee, Madison, and Rappahannock Counties — were sworn in yesterday at the Arlington Farms induction center. Some 150 Marylanders, residing in the Washington vicinity, were inducted in August.

In announcing the November call for 70,000 Army inductees, the Department of Defense said that neither the Navy nor Air Force planned to ask for draftees in November. Both Navy and Air Force have yet to resort to the draft; instead, they've been building up their forces through volunteer enlistments and calling up of reserves.

Under the present Selective Service law and regulations, only non-veterans without dependents between the ages of 19 and 25 inclusive are subject to the draft. However, in view of the President's announcement last week that he plans to raise the level of the armed forces from 1,500,000 to around three million, the regulations will have to be changed to permit the drafting of men with dependents. Furthermore, the law will have to be altered to permit the drafting of World War II veterans, or men between the ages of 26 and 35, or both.

Maj. Gen. Lewis B. Hershey, Selective Service director, will be principal speaker at today's send-off exercises. Also participating in the ceremony, will be William Leahy, District draft chief, Commissioner John Russell Young, Brig. Gen. William H. Abendroth, commander of the National Guard, and Waldron E. Leonard, District director of veterans' services.

The District draftees will report at 7:30 a. m. today at the Army's recruiting center, 402 10th st. nw. They'll be taken by bus to the Arlington Farms induction center for processing, then whisked back for the mass induction. At 10:30 p. m. today they'll entrain for Fort Jackson, S. C., to begin their 21 months of service.

Marine League Demands Apology From Truman

Senator Edward J. Thye (R., Minn.) pronounced the President's letter "shocking," and Senator George D. Aiken (R., Vt.) called it "indiscreet, incorrect and uncalled for." Senator Joseph R. McCarthy (R., Wis.), a Marine veteran, termed the President's statement "fantastically unpatriotic."

Democrats Keep Silent

Democrats kept silent for the most part, but Senator Estes Kefauver (D., Tenn.), an Administration backer, told reporters he thought it a "very unthoughtful letter."

Speaking for the Marine Corps League, Nixon said President Truman had been invited to attend the group's banquet, but after first accepting had declined due to "pressure of other business." He said after reading Mr. Truman's comments in the letter to McDonough, his first reaction had been to call at the White House for an explanation. But on second thought, Nixon added, he decided the league should "let the President call upon us."

Charles Ross, White House press secretary, told reporters he knew of no plans of the President to go before the group.

Raymond B. Butts, 3007 Manning st., Alexandria, Department of Virginia commandant of the league, also issued a statement, saying he didn't think the Marine Corps "rates" what Mr. Truman said and asked that he reconsider.

Reserve Officers Protest

The Marine Corps Reserve Officers Association protested the action. They declared the President's words showed his "misunderstanding" of the approved mission of the Marines and "dramatically pointed up" the necessity of having the Marine commandant on the Joint Chiefs where he could advise him of their role.

Under the official "Functions Paper," setting forth missions of the various armed forces, the Marines are charged with "seizure or defense of advanced naval bases and for the conduct of such land operations as may be essential to the prosecution of a naval campaign." These functions "do not contemplate the creation of a second land army."

Mr. Truman did not elaborate on his reference to the Marine's "propaganda machine." Department of Defense figures on the number of personnel assigned to public relations work showed 74 Marine officers, enlisted men and civilians on such details, compared to 1017 in the Army, 966 in the Air Force and 406 in the Navy.

Text of Letter

The President's letter:

"My Dear Congressman McDonough: I read with a lot of interest your letter in regard to the Marine Corps. For your information, the Marine Corps is the Navy's police force and as long as I am President that is what it will remain. They have a propaganda machine that is almost equal to Stalin's.

"Nobody desires to belittle the efforts of the Marine Corps but when the Marine Corps goes into the Army it works with and for the Army and that is the way it should be.

"I am more than happy to have your expression of interest in this naval military organization. The Chief of Naval Operations is the Chief of Staff of the Navy of which the Marines are a part.

"Sincerely yours,

"Harry S. Truman."

6 More G. E. Plants Closed by Strikers

Nominate Today

Lynch Likely Opponent For Dewey

By Sam Stavisky
Post Reporter

A walkout of CIO workers at General Electric Co. spread to six more plants yesterday, and temporarily paralyzed an atomic energy laboratory, despite the truce efforts of Government mediators and union leaders.

Violence flared at GE's electronics plant at Syracuse, N. Y., where some 4000 members of the CIO International Union of Electrical Workers (IUE) have been on strike since last Thursday.

The Syracuse workers, along with 19,000 IUE members at five GE plants in Lynn and Everett, Mass., last week kicked off what was scheduled to become a Nation-wide strike against General Electric for a 10-cent-an-hour hike in pay and other contract improvements.

The union's leadership, headed by James B. Carey, deferred the walkout at the request of Cyrus S. Ching, director of the Federal Mediation and Conciliation Service. Ching said a walkout would be a "most serious threat" to the home front's production effort for the Korean war.

Peace Talks Thursday

Ching called on IUE and GE representatives to meet with him here today for a mediation session. The peace talks were deferred to Thursday at the request of GE.

Yesterday, the IUE workers of six more plants joined the strike in defiance of their national leaders. The new strikes involve GE plants at Holyoke, Mass., 400; Providence, R. I., 350; Warren, O., 700; Youngstown, O., 700; New Kensington, Pa., 300; Trenton, N. J., 860. IUE headquarters here emphasized the walkouts are not "wildcat" strikes, but are being conducted under terms of local union autonomy.

Some 400 IUE members at GE's Knolls Atomic Power Laboratory, near Schenectady, N. Y., struck for five hours but returned to their jobs at the direct request of IUE Chairman Carey.

At Syracuse, three pickets were reported hospitalized, two with broken legs, as a result of clashes with workers attempting to go through the picket lines.

Some of the pickets hurled themselves in front of autos driven by non-strikers. Four pickets were reported hit by cars. Two deputy sheriffs were also hit by cars. No one was arrested. GE ordered the Syracuse plant, which employs 9200, shut down, with the statement that "we cannot subject our workers to personal injury and property damage from irresponsible hoodlums." Company spokesmen charged that the violence was so great, the police couldn't halt it.

Makes War Material

The Government's particular interest in the GE strike, according to the Conciliation Service, is that about a fifth of GE's production includes war materiel, such as radar, gunnery systems, electronic items. The struck Massachusetts plants make jet airplane engines and turbines.

However, Lemuel R. Boulware, GE vice president, charged that the Government stepped into the dispute to save the IUE and its leader, Jim Carey, from a "total failure" so far as the strike call was concerned.

CIO-IUE won the right to represent 56,000 General Electric workers after the CIO booted the pro-Communist United Electrical Workers out last fall. The latter union, now independent, is also conducting new contract negotiations for some 37,000 GE workers.

The IUE last night announced its convention, scheduled for September 11 at Milwaukee, has been postponed to December 4, also at Milwaukee, because of its present dispute with General Electric.

Ex-Inmate Tells Of Love Trysts In Chicago Jail

CHICAGO, Sept. 5 (U.P.).—A former county jail trusty told the State's Attorney's office today that he spent $1500 bribing guards for luxuries, including love tryists with a red-haired woman prisoner in the warden's private office.

Eddie Leonard, 28, gave Assistant State's Attorney James Brown a detailed account of alleged laxities in the jail that have led to a grand jury investigation.

The former inmate said he spent about $100 on his romance with the red-haired, 22-year-old girl, and on one Sunday spent nine hours in the office with her, drinking, making love and looking at the warden's television set.

Sheriff Elmer Walsh, political foe of State's Attorney John Boyle, issued a statement denying Leonard's story on behalf of Warden Chester Fordney. Walsh charged that the investigation of the jail by Boyle was politically inspired.

First Arms-Aid Tanks Arrive at Cherbourg

CHERBOURG, France, Sept. 5.—(U.P.)—The first tanks sent to Europe under the United States military aid program arrived today and unloading operations began quietly.

The Sherman tanks, all new and the majority "buttoned up" with plastic coverings, were part of one of the heaviest shipments of arms to Europe that have arrived in this port. There were no Communist demonstrations when the freighter American Miller tied up at the dock.

Plumley Urges Resignation Of Johnson

NORTHFIELD, Vt., Sept. 5 (U.P.).—Representative Charles A. Plumley (R., Vt.) said last night Secretary of Defense Louis E. Johnson should be forced to resign to "save the lives of many American boys."

"The people of the United States should force Secretary Johnson to resign now that his incompetency and inefficiency are exposed," Plumley said in an interview. "Such a move would save the lives of many American boys caught in the whirlpool of Johnson incompetency."

Plumley added that Representative Anthony F. Tauriello (D., N. Y.), was correct when he said he had been informed by reliable officials that Johnson contributed to the persecution of the late James Forrestal and forced him to resign as the first defense secretary.

Gen. Renfrow Defends Acheson, Johnson

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Sept 5 (U.P.).—Brig. Gen. Louis H. Renfrow said today that Secretaries Louis Johnson and Dean Acheson are victims of "gross misrepresentation of facts."

The assistant to Secretary of Defense Johnson told the Missouri State American Legion convention that the Nation was better prepared at the start of the Korean war than at any time since World War II demobilization.

He said criticism of Johnson was sure to occur "due to personal interest" after he discharged 170,000 civilian employes, declared 55 military installations obsolete and closed "unneeded" hospitals.

"The attacks made against Acheson and Johnson are the result of gross misrepresentation of facts," he said.

Va. U. Ordered to Admit Negro Law Student

Judge John Paul, was a decree suggested by Almond.

It directed that cost of the action be paid by the university.

Defendants were the rector and board of visitors, Law Dean Frederick D. G. Ribble and Registar George Oscar Ferguson, jr.

Spottswood Robinson 3d, counsel for Swanson related to the court the facts upon which both sides were agreed—that except for race, Swanson was fully qualified to enter the university, and that in spite of United States Supreme Court opinions clearly laying down the law in such cases, the board of visitors of the university had seen fit to reject Swanson because of the Virginia Constitution, its statutes and customs regarding segregation.

Almond agreed with the Negro attorney's statement of the facts and said, "There is really no issue—it is merely what form of decree shall be entered."

The decree, which at a stroke shattered Virginia precedent, said in part:

"The court is of the opinion that the action of the defendant in denying the plaintiff or any other Negro similarly situated admission, because of his or their race or color, to the Department of Law of the University of Virginia, whether taken pursuant to the provisions of the Constitution and statutes of Virginia or otherwise, denies the plaintiff and any other Negro similarly situated of rights secured to him by the 14th amendment of the Constitution of the United States. . . ."

Further German Purges Seen

BERLIN, Sept. 5 (A.P.).—Further purges in the Communist administration of Soviet-occupied East Germany were indicated today by sharp press attacks against unsatisfactory performances in socialized industry and agriculture.

The Russian zone was shocked last week by the ouster of six high officials of the Communist regime and their expulsion from the party. They and four other minor officials who were also purged from public jobs were accusted of "foul liberalism," maintaining dangerous western connections and lacking faith in the Soviet Union.

While iron curtain secrecy still hid the fate of these 10, reports in the West Berlin press said another blacklist of 40 party functionaries had been drafted.

Ruhr Business Rides Tide of New Orders

To Bar Aggressor

Bonn Asks Separate Peace, Arms

BONN, Germany, Sept. 5 (U.P.).—Vice Chancellor Franz Bluecher today asked the Western powers to conclude a separate peace with Western Germany and end their occupation government.

He urged the Western powers to send "strong forces" to Germany to eliminate "open temptation" to potential aggressors.

"If Western Europe is lost, all is lost," he said.

Bluecher called for removal of the 11,100,000-ton limit on German steel production. He said Germany would need 16 million tons of steel a year.

"Germany's participation in defense will depend on the confidence of our youth in the free world's readiness to give Western Germany sufficient support for security," he said.

Meanwhile the Allied High Commission announced the Germans may resume construction and maintenance of airfields for civilian use.

DUESSELDORF, Germany, Sept. 5 (U.P.).—Business is booming in the Ruhr today.

Orders for coal and steel from Europeans trying to rearm are showering down the way the bombs once fell.

And the Iron Curtain countries are right in there bidding with the West.

Two million tons of coal that had been piling up have been sold within the past few weeks. Orders for German steel have increased up to three times their level earlier this year.

Continental European countries and the United States are among the chief buyers. But Iron Curtain states are also trying, with greater emphasis than ever before, to get into the act, the sources said.

But leading industrialists as well as high government representatives cautioned that West Germans should not be counted on for major contributions to defense—even of noncombat material—in the near or even more distant future.

They estimated it will take up to two years to expand production to a level on which Germany could make a sizable contribution, and then controls must be relaxed, they insist.

The steel boom has raised delivery dates from a few weeks to between 8 and 12 months.

Unemployment Drops In Western Germany

FRANKFURT, Germany, Sept. 5.—(U.P.)—Unemployment in western Germany dropped 110,000 during the month of August to 1,341,000, the United States High Commission announced today.

The percentage of jobless and salary earners at the end of August was estimated at 8.7 percent, as compared with 8.8 percent a year ago.

2 Youths Wounded, Causing Mixup in Defense Offices

Lieut. Stewart

Pvt. Neri

Corpl. Ferguson

Cpl. Henderson

Two Washington area youths have been wounded in action in Korea, both cases causing slight confusion in the Defense Department.

First, a Kensington, Md., youth who was wounded was mistaken for a Philadelphia boy who wasn't, and, secondly, a Washington youth not listed as a casualty by the Defense Department received a Purple Heart.

Pvt. Anthony J. Neri, jr., 19, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Neri, 10 Howard ave., Kensington, wrote his parents 10 days ago that he had been injured in the arm and on the side of the head.

Meanwhile, Anthony J. Neri, 16, of Philadelphia—discharged from the Army last March because of his age—was at home when his family received notification that he had been injured.

Placed in Same Folder

The Defense Department explained that somehow records for both youths had been placed in the same folder. When they received word that Pvt. Anthony J. Neri was wounded, they sent the telegram to the Philadelphia address.

Now it is all straightened out.

A telegram has been sent to Philadelphia explaining the error, and one has been dispatched to Kensington notifying the Neri family of the son's injury.

Corp. James A. Ferguson, 20, grandson of Mrs. Margaret S. Carrick of 412 11th st. ne., was awarded a Purple Heart for wounds received in action against the enemy at Waegwan, Korea, according to a release from First Cavalry Division headquarters. The Defense Department has no record of the case and his grandmother has not been officially notified.

Corp. Ferguson, son of a regular army man now in his thirtieth year of service, was born and educated in Washington, graduating from Stuart Junior high. He enlisted in the Army two years ago and has been overseas since November 1948.

Wounded Outside Waegwan

Ferguson was wounded August 2 outside of Waegwan while serving with the First Cavalry Division, according to the Division's release.

Neri, who was born and went to school in Kensington, enlisted two years ago and has been overseas about a year. He has four sisters and one brother, Mary, 24, Pauline, 21, Teresa, 17, John, 13 and Phyliss 11.

Meanwhile, another Washington casualty, Corp. Isaiah Henderson, 24, has been flown back to the United States and is at the Bethesda Naval Medical Center.

Corporal Henderson, who landed at Bethesda early yesterday, was shot in the left arm by a sniper while acting as a forward observer with a heavy mortar squad in the Twenty-fourth Infantry regiment.

8 Years in Army

A native of Chicago, Henderson has been in the Army eight years. He married a Washington girl in October, 1946. His wife, Ruth, lives at 1916 9th st. nw.

Henderson served with the Twenty-fourth Infantry on Bouganville during World War II. He was sent to Korea on August 2 and was in combat until being wounded August 16.

Two other Washington men have appeared on recent Defense Department casualty lists.

Lieut. Victor L. Stewart, 28, has been missing in action since July 27, according to an official telegram received by his sister-in-law, Mrs. Bertha Griffin, 1264 Jackson st. ne., and Pfc. William H. Creed, 19, son of Mrs. Hilda J. Creed, Box 573, Seminary rd., Alexandria, has been wounded.

Twenty-nine area men have been wounded and 15 are missing in action to date in the Korean war. Four local men have been killed.

General's Wife Leaves Estate Of $2 Million

Mrs. Howard C. Davidson, 55, the socially prominent wife of Major General Davidson, who plunged to her death August 10 from a Baltimore hospital, left an estate appraised at more than two million dollars.

The sum was revealed when her will was filed for probate in Orphans Court at Leonardtown, Md. Under terms of the testiment, the bulk of her estate will be divided equally among her three daughters and one son. Mrs. Davidson was an heiress to the Patterson cash register fortune.

General Davidson, wartime commander of the Tenth Air Force in the Burma campaign, will receive a $10,000 bequest.

Among Mrs. Davidson's charitable bequests was historic Tudor Hall in Leonardtown to the St. Marys Library.

Mrs. Davidson was active in social and civic affairs here. She had an estate at Cremona, near Leonardtown, that was well known to hundreds to Washingtonians and Marylanders for its gardens.

Her children are Stuart Davidson, now at Cremona, and Julia Shaw Davidson, Mary Howard Davidson and Frances Patterson Davidson. Executors for the estate are Stuart Davidson and the Riggs National Bank.

Vatican Hears

Church Used By Red Army Destroyed

VATICAN CITY, Sept. 5 (AP).—Fides, a Catholic news agency, reported today that United States planes destroyed the cathedral of Seoul after it was learned the Communists were using it as an ammunition storehouse. Fides said it was feared some nuns were killed during the bombing.

In a dispatch from Korea the news agency said the cathedral had been spared by American airmen when they destroyed the adjoining administration building that was used as a Communist army headquarters. United States intelligence then learned the cathedral was used to store ammunition and orders were given to destroy it, Fides added.

Fides said the cathedral was one of many Catholic churches that have been destroyed during the war. It said that bishop's house, cathedral and a major seminary have been destroyed at Seoul as well as establishments in other Korean towns.

Hearing Set On Zoning of Olney Theater

A public hearing on a change in the Montgomery County zoning ordinance which would make legal the operation of Olney Theater was announced yesterday by the County Council.

The hearing was set for 11:30 a. m. October 11 at Rockville Courthouse. The proposed amendment would allow the council to grant a permit for legitimate theater operation in residential areas where it could be shown that it would not constitute a nuisance.

The theater is now in a nonconforming classification, since it is part of the Sandy Spring neighborhood embraced by the zoning law as residential property after the theater had begun operation.

An application to rezone the Olney site a year ago was rejected when residents complained that it would harm the neighborhood to permit commercial zoning which might later be used for some purpose other than a theater. The residential character of the neighborhood would not be disturbed under the amendment, it was said.

The council also set a public hearing for 2:30 p. m. September 26 on the request of Alfred S. Novak for a waiver of county construction code requirements. He wants to build a street in Chalfonte subdivision that is narrower than the width specified in the code. A permit on his request has been refused.

The Council authorized the Board of Education to spend an additional $6500 than the budget allowance of $65,000 for construction of a four classroom and library addition to the Longview Negro School.

Weinbaum Denies Testimony on Red Party Assistance

LOS ANGELES, Sept. 5 (AP).—Dr. Sidney Weinbaum, formerly connected with a top-secret United States jet propulsion project today denied that he ever was a member of the Communist party.

The former California Institute of Technology scientist took the stand at his Federal Court trial on charges that he perjured himself in denying before an Army board that he once held Communist party membership.

The Russian-born Weinbaum also denied that he collected dues at the Caltech branch of the party or had invited Dr. Gustav Albrecht, now head of the physics department at Chapman College, Los Angeles, to join the party.

Dr. Albrecht had testified for the Government that Weinbaum had recruited for the party on the Caltech campus.

Correction

A crowd estimated at 15,000 by Kenneth Barncord, general chairman, watched the Gaithersburg-Washington Grove parade, feature of the Gaithersburg centennial celebration Monday. The Washington Post incorrectly stated in Tuesday editions that the crowd was estimated at 1500. The Post regrets the error.

Yongchon, Pohang Fall to Red Forces

Writes Brewster

Son Doubts Bailey's Wire Was Tapped

Senator Owen Brewster (R., Me.) yesterday took the offensive in the Senate wire tapping investigation.

He called a press conference to release a letter in which the son of the late Senator Josiah W. Bailey said he did not believe his father's telephone was tapped in 1946 and that "it is my personal belief he did not know" Abner (Chick) Lappin.

Lappin last week testfied Senator Bailey told him in a conversation at the Capitol that the latter believed Senator Brewster was having his wires tapped.

Lappin is the man Brewster says shadowed him during the Howard Hughes investigation in 1947. And Police Lieut. Joseph W. Shimon—center of the current probe—has testified he did some wiretapping only to trail the Brewster "shadow."

James H. Pou Bailey, the late Senator's son, a Raleigh, N. C. attorney, also wrote he does not believe the late Senator ever made the uncomplimentary remark about Brewster which Lappin attributed to Bailey. The remark was ordered removed from the committee record.

According to testimony, Lappin placed his conversation with Senator Bailey at a time when Bailey, as head of the Interstate Commerce Committee, was opposing a bill supported by Brewster and Pan American Airlines to license only one airline for overseas service.

Hughes later charged, and Brewster denied, that Brewster offered to call off the 1947 probe into Hughes wartime plane contracts if Hughes would agree to merge his TWA airline with Pan American.

States Second Division, the First Marine Brigade and the United States Twenty-fifth Division are holding off other Red forces.

Pohang, second to Pusan in importance as a United Nations port, fell last night to the Reds after a day of hard fighting. The Communist north of Pohang had unleashed a tank-supported assault yesterday against the South Korean Third Division.

In mountain areas ring Taegu on the north, First Cavalry troops gave up trying to oust Reds in a walled town of mud huts on a 3,000-foot mountain and pulled back.

Other First Cavalry units yielded Tabu, 12 miles north of Taegu on a road known as "the bowling alley"—so-called because the Reds tried to bowl down a straight stretch two weeks ago, only to be bloodily repulsed.

Where the Reds were within seven miles of Taegu was not pinpointed.

Torrential rains have been hampering the United Nations air arm in sapping the strength of the new Red pushes. But fighter planes road away in strength to the Taegu sector at dawn today.

In doubt after the fall of Pohang was the status of American forces defendnig an airbase, six miles southeast of the port city.

The first British troops in Korea went into action on the broken northern front. Last night one company was isolated in the swirling actions but fought its way out by daybreak.

24th Dvision Enters Fight

The United States Twenty-fourth Division swung into the Yongchon-Kyongju whirlpool of fighting. They used fast-firing Patton tanks.

The threat to Kyongju was against a highly important rail and road junction where arteries fan out toward the lifeline port of Pusan as well as west toward Taegu.

One Red force which rolled through the crumbled South Korean Capitol division south of Kigye, swung west for more than 10 miles and had Yongchon under mortar fire last night.

The main threats to Taegu appeared to be from the north and east. General MacArthur's early morning summary said the main Red effort was in the northeast where 30,000 Reds struck at South Korean lines. This included the area of the Kigye breakthrough.

Airfield Defenders Isolated

The air base southeast of fallen Pohang has not been used by fighters since South Korean troops recaptured the port August 17. The Reds had seized it August 12. Since August 17, transport planes had been using the base to bring in supplies. The American defenders were believed isolated from any overland connections with main forces. It was possible they could be evacuated by air.

Roads leading from Pohang either were cut entirely or under Communist mortar and machine-gun fire.

Twenty-three miles southwest of Taegu, the town of Changnyong was described by Associated Press correspondent Don Huth as a fire-gutted battleground. Four times yesterday United States Second Division troops drove out Red snipers from the town. Huth said it was not clear who held Changnyong this morning. The Reds were making extensive use of booby traps in the area.

Huth also reported that six unidentified planes bombed and strafed the Second Division sector today. Huth said the planes dropped five bombs, made strafing runs on ground troops, then disappeared.

United Nations forces elsewhere on the 120-mile rectangular shaped front appeared to be holding their own.

On the Masan front in the south, the United States Twenty-fifth Division trapped and "annihilated" 1000 Reds, the Eighth Army communique said. It was in this sector the Communists lost 13,000 troops in four days of an abortive attack.

To the north of the Twenty-fifth, United States Marines and the Army's Second Division ground out new gains against the Red bulge across the Naktong River in the Yongsan sector, 32 miles south of Taegu. Gains of 6 miles were counted as the Reds retreated back toward the rain-swollen Naktong.

Hongkong Stops Strategic Goods Going to Formosa

HONGKONG, Tuesday, Sept. 5 (U.P.).—Hongkong authorities, on instructions from London, have clamped a complete ban on shipments of aviation gas and other strategic materials to Nationalist Formosa, it was reported today.

Although the action was taken quietly, without publication of official notice, London's decision already has resulted in discussions at the "highest levels" between British and American authorities, according to official sources here.

The United States consulate general here was understood to have made a full report to Washington.

Symington Backs Proposal To Disperse U. S. Agencies

National Securities Resources Board Chairman W. Stuart Symington yesterday gave a push to the President's Government dispersal plan.

Appearing before a closed session of the Senate Appropriations Committee, on other matters, Symington added a general statement backing the proposal to erect eight new Government buildings in the Maryland and Virginia countryside.

The plan originated in NSRB as a method of making Washington a "less attractive" target to a potential enemy by scattering some key agencies within a 20-to-30-mile radius of the White House.

General Service Administrator Jess Larson and members of his staff testified before the Senators on several other matters but didn't get to the dispersal plan. They were told to come back Thursday morning for that.

Senator Brien McMahon (D., Conn.), chairman of the Joint Atomic Energy Committee, also was prepared to testify, but he, too, was put off until Thursday. McMahon is a strong supporter of the $139,800,000 program.

Brewster Rebukes Willkie For Backing Tobey in Primary

By Jack Steele
NYHT News Service

Philip H. Willkie has stirred up a bitter Republican party row by intervening in the hotly-contested New Hampshire primary to endorse liberal Senator Charles W. Tobey for renomination, it was learned yesterday.

Willkie, son of the late Wendell Willkie, Republican presidential nominee in 1940, was reported to have endorsed Tobey in newspaper advertisements which he signed as assistant director of the Republican Senatorial Campaign Committee. This committee traditionally is neutral in party primary fights.

Senator Owen Brewster, (of Maine), chairman of the committee, disclosed that he had strongly reprimanded Willkie and demanded an explanation of his action in a telegram sent to Willkie's home at Rushville, Ind. The Senator had not received a reply late yesterday.

"If your action is correctly reported," Brewster telegraphed, "this is most embarrassing to our campaign committee as it is an inviolable rule of politics that the senatorial campaign committee is most scrupulous in avoiding any mixing of primary contests which are peculiarly for the determination of the Republican voters in each state. Any use of the senatorial committee to influence primaries seriously mars its usefulness."

Other Republican leaders said privately that Willkie had embarrassed them particularly because some of the party's biggest contributors in New York and elsewhere are helping finance a campaign to unseat Tobey. His primary opponent is Wesley Powell, former Secretary to Senator Styles Bridges.

Senator Brewster said his attention was called to Willkie's endorsement of Senator Tobey by William Loeb, publisher of the New Hampshire Morning Union, Manchester, N. H., in which the pro-Tobey advertisements first appeared last Thursday.

"Is it not highly improper for Willkie to take sides in such a contest?" Mr. Loeb inquired in a telegram to the committee chairman.

"Furthermore, is Willkie aware of the fact that his father was bitterly opposed to Tobey because of the Senator's well-known isolationist views and the fact that the Senator had opposed his father's nomination at the 1940 Republican convention?"

Senator Tobey opposed this country's intervention in World War II before Pearl Harbor, but has since strongly supported its international commitments as well as being a leader of his party's liberal wing on domestic issues.

Willkie, who has been in Oregon and Washington to fill speaking engagements for Republican organizations, was reached by telephone at Wayzata, Minn., yesterday but said he had just received Brewster's message, and had no immediate comment.

Britain Seeking Legal Method to Stop Shipments of Machine Tools to Russia

LONDON, Sept. 5 (U.P.).—The British Labor Government is seeking international law advice on how to stop the shipment of strategic machine tools to Russia and its satellites without being guilty of breaking trade agreements.

The most likely possibility is that the British Government may "requisition" the shipment about to leave for Russia for its increased defense program.

The government's international lawyers are studying such a step. The British Cabinet will consider the entire problem this week and probably give its answer to Winston Churchill before the special session of Parliament on defense meets one week from today.

The Labor Government is less concerned about Tory Leader Churchill and the domestic repercussions of his charges than with the reaction from the United States. British officials are worried lest the unfavorable impression created in America will become magnified during forthcoming discussions on both Marshall and military aid.

That machine tools were being manufactured here for Russia was no secret. They were part of the British-Soviet trade agreement. But Churchill's denunciation of the government for continuing to fill the orders created a sensation.

The first of the machine tools completed under the 1948 trade agreement are ready and scheduled to go to Russia soon.

The Russians have fulfilled their part of the agreement with timber and grain shipments. To avoid putting itself in the position of failing to fulfill its part, the government sent international lawyers scurrying to find a way out. Since the machine tools can be used for reconditioning arms, the idea of "requisitioning" them for Britain's defense is getting serious study.

'Incredible Ignorance' Charged Against Britain

CLEVELAND, Sept. 5. (U.P.).—Britain's continued shipments of machine tools to Russia shows an "incredible ignorance" of the uses to which these tools can be put in war production, Tell Berna, general manager of the National Machine Tool Builders Association, said today.

"Any engineer . . . knows that all machine tools, of whatever nature, are used in war production," Berna said. "The withholding of a few types of machines merely gives lip service to the problem. In fact, the types withheld can be built on the machines received."

To Save Church

Parish Puts Parsonage Up for Sale

Hard times haven't weakened the faith of members of the First Nazarine Church of Arlington.

Threatened with a mortgage foreclosure on their handsome brick church, the tiny congregation now hopes to sell the neighboring parsonage at 2013 N. 21st st. and ward off creditors with the proceeds.

"We have bright hopes," says the new pastor, Rev. Noah B. Herrell, who preached his first sermon last Sunday. He replaces former minister Floyd N. Bradley, whose ill-starred home building project now imperils the church building.

Hoping to pay off the mortgage on the church, the Rev. Bradley launched a building project in 1945, which mushroomed into 27 homes. But the venture ended the minister-turned-contractor in bankruptcy last June, with claims totaling $116,679 listed against assets of $86,050.

Suits which amount to about $22,000 have been filed against the church itself, since members of the board of trustees indorsed some promissory notes signed by the Rev. Bradley.

A suit to recover $1457.58 from four church trustees comes up on Thursday in Arlington Circuit Court. The Gruver Manufacturing Co. of Silver Springs, Md., lists as defendants:

Persons Morgan, 3103 Columbia Pike, Arlington; Harry Vinson, 2013 N 21st st., Arlington; Edward J. Ashby, 4016 N. 11th st., Arlington, and the Rev. Bradley (now recnuperating from a breakdown in Philadelphia, Pa.).

Filed last month in Arlington Circuit Court and not yet scheduled for hearing are two other suits against the church:

An $8020.34 claim by Mrs. Mollie McCowan, 2006 N. 20th rd., Arlington, against Morgan, Vinson, Rev. Bradley, and another trustee, James W. Viar, of 2110 Lee hwy., Arlington.

A claim for $12,500 against Morgan, Vinson, Ashby, Bradley, and Viar, by Murphy and Ames, Inc. 1820 Ft. Myer dr., Arlington.

Ashby, who resigned as trustee "because of health" last January, said yesterday, "I have a feeling we'll straighten out and make a go of it. Just be patient and have faith and trust in the Lord."

Said another congregation member, who asked that his name not be used: "We're left here holding the bag. But we think there's a very good chance of our surviving."

tended was not in the Un-American file.

This educator, a professor at a Midwestern university, already had turned down the District school system's request that she lecture here.

The mistaken name in the files is a former correspondent for the Daily Worker.

The second name dropped by the school board committee is that of a prominent Washington physician.

The doctor told The Post that as far as he knew he had never been invited to lecture to school teachers. He also expressed surprise that his name was listed in the files of the House committee.

Dr. Corning explained that not all of the persons named in his original list had been asked to lecture. He said the names were suggested by school teachers and officers and that they formed a pool from which he drew available speakers.

The physician was listed in the material furnished by the House committee as having signed a statement more than two years ago opposing the Mundt Anti-Communist bill.

The local doctor said he had opposed the bill because "it appeared to drive Communists underground" and was "against freedom of speech."

Asked directly if he was a Communist, the doctor replied, "Oh, no!" Asked if he ever was a Communist, he said, "No, of course, not."

The third educator is a professor at a New York university and an expert in the field of child development.

She said that during the war, "while we were allies with Russia, she had been a member of the National Council of American-Soviet Friendship."

She said she resigned long before this organization became suspect.

"Everything in my religion is very much against communism. I am a Catholic. I am much opposed to the methods and tactics of communism," she said.

Newscaster Arrested For Reckless Driving

CBS Newscaster Claude A. Mahoney was booked last night by Fairfax police for "reckless driving." Police said Mahoney, 49, who lives on Route 3 in Fairfax, was arrested on State Route 236 near Fairfax about 8:25 p. m. He was released on a personal summons to appear September 13 before a Fairfax county trial justice.

Ship Fire Sabotage Reported Uncovered

TORONTO, Sept. 5 (U.P.).—The Toronto Daily Star said today that Federal investigators of the Department of Transport had uncovered evidence of sabotage in the Noronic and Quebec ship fires.

The Noronic burned at a Toronto dock last September with the loss of 119 lives. A fire in the Quebec at Tadoussac last month claimed seven lives. Both ships were owned by the Canada Steamship Lines.

In Otawa, Deputy Transport Minister J. C. Lessard denied that investigators had uncovered evidence of sabotage.

Kefauver Subpena Refused by Ricca

CHICAGO, Sept. 5 (U.P.).—An attorney for Paul (The Waiter) Ricca today refused to accept a subpena ordering Ricca to appear before the Kefauver committee, a Senate group investigating Nation-wide crime.

Ricca, former Capone syndicate figure now on parole from a Federal prison sentence imposed after he was convicted on conspiracy charges in a motion picture industry extortion plot, appeared at the Chicago Federal courthouse to report to a probation officer.

With him were Attorneys William Scott Stewart and Eugene Bernstein.

Stewart said the subpena handed him by Frank Reedy, a deputy marshal, wasn't legal.

He said it was not accompanied by the check that should have been attached to cover travel expenses; secondly, it asked Ricca to go to Washington "forthwith," taking personal records dating back to 1940, but the Kefauver Committee is not in session now; and thirdly, the signature on the subpena was not a legal signature. It bore a printed line "Estes Kefauver," Stewart said, instead of the script signature of the Senator.

Stewart said he would announce in court Wednesday that on behalf of his client he declined to accept service.

Stewart said he would ask the parole officer for permission to allow Ricca to go to Washington and appear before the committee, when it is in session, and when Ricca is served with "an official and legal subpena."

Unions Get Red Warning From Attlee

BRIGHTON, England, Sept. 5, (A.P.).—Prime Minister Attlee warned the eight-million-member Trades Union Congress (TUC) today to beware of Communists in its ranks.

Somberly, Attlee called upon the union delegates at their anual conference for "constant watchfulness" against followers of the Soviet line. He added:

"To defeat the fanaticism of the Communist, we need in every member of the great labor movement a constant realization of the ideals for which we stand, the constant determination by every individual to do his or her utmost to build the kind of society we want.

"The danger in democracies comes from indifference, and from leaving the work to be done to the other fellow."

The Communists still hold some high offices in British unions although the TUC purged the Reds from its executive council about a year ago. Since then it has been trying to oust them from union posts.

Attlee said the Communist attack on Korea had necessitated that Britain undertake her new three-year, $9,520,000,000 defense program if the United States will help foot the bill.

He repeated his frequent warning that the defense program would mean sacrifices.

"Some people will be giving up some leisure," he declared. "Others will have to forego some hopes for amenities.

"We ask you all to regard any alterations in your working conditions as your contribution to ensuring the safety of the nation."

Attlee again acknowledged the postwar aid received by Britain from Canada and the United States. He added:

"If we had been able to have continued to work in peace, as we did in war, with the USSR, progress toward world recovery would have been much more rapid. . . . Difficulties due in the man to Communist - inspired action have forced upon us the necessity of spending far more on defense than we would have wished."

Atassi Is Named Chief Of 3d Syrian Republic

DAMASCUS, Syria, Sept. 5 (U.P.).—Hashem Atassi was elected president of the new third republic of Syria by Parliament, which had earlier approved the nation's new constitution.

The moderately socialistic constitution is one of the most progressive in the Arab world. It is expected to revolutionize Syria's social order.

Cohen's Visit Is Called Effort to 'Open Up' Texas

DALLAS, Tex., Sept. 5 (U.P.).—Chief of Police Carl Hansson today charged that West Coast gambler Mickey Cohen's flying visit to Texas last week was part of a campaign to "open up" the State for gambling operations by a nationwide crime syndicate.

Hansson refused to name the syndicate, but he also charged that Benny Binion, a Nevada gambler who has thwarted two Texas extradition attempts since last Christmas, was "a power in the effort."

Two Texas Rangers routed Cohen out of bed at Wichita Falls about 24 hours after he arrived and told him to get out of the State or go to jail. Cohen took an airplane and went home to Los Angeles.

Pennsylvania Railroad Purchases 214 Diesels

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 5 (A.P.).—The Pennsylvania Railroad today announced the purchase of 214 Diesel-electric locomotives at a cost of about 55 million dollars.

Walter S. Franklin, president, in announcing the order said that "financing of the large expenditure for the 214 new Diesel-electric locomotives and for the 5000 new freight cars ordered in July, totaling 85 million dollars, has already been satisfactorily arranged and no equipment trust certificates will be issued."

Atlantic City Boardwalk Sees Competition for Miss America

SITTING PRETTY—Sandra Stahl (left), officially labeled as "Miss District of Columbia" in the Atlantic City Beauty Pageant, perches on a rooftop railing with Karlyne Adele, "Miss Washington State," as they wait for formal opening of the beauty contest. "Miss America" will be chosen Saturday

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Sept. 5 (A.P.).—This year's competitions for the title of Miss America went on view today in a Boardwalk parade witnessed by 150,000 persons.

Fifty-four girls from 46 states, four cities, Canada, Alaska, Puerto Rico and Hawaii drew applause and whistles as they rode a five-mile stretch of the beachfront.

Most of the beauties rode in decorated rolling chairs, but four were carried on huge Mardi-Gras type floats designed by their sponsors. They were Miss Alaska, Miss New Jersey, Miss Pennsylvania and Miss Puerto Rico.

Maxine Cothern of Fairbanks, Alaska, appeared in white parka and black slacks, standing high on her float behind an Alaskan sled. Four papier mache dogs were strung ahead on simulated snow.

The parade easily was the most tuneful and colorful of the postwar years. String bands from Philadelphia and fife and drum corps from a number of New Jersey municipalities were in the line of march.

The parade was the first event of the pageant.

Nazi Idea Gain in West Germany Is Reported

FRANKFURT, Sept. 5 (A.P.).—The number of Germans in the United States occupation zone who think Naziism was "a good idea, badly carried out" has increased since 1947, the American High Commission reported today.

The commission also said that "leave politics to others" has consistently been the attitude of most of the United States zone public.

"Less than two-fifths claim to have interest in politics and one-third of the population believes that West Germans are not now capable of democratic government," the High Commission said.

These opinion trends were reported in an analysis of the findings of scores of American public opinion surveys taken between early 1946 and December 1949.

In measuring attitudes toward Naziism, the high commission said that the number of Germans who thought National Socialism was "a good idea, badly carried out" increased from 52 percent in 1947 to 59 percent in 1949.

The commission said "the results clearly indicate that the term National Socialism has not come into disrepute to a majority of Germans. The trends suggest that during the years more Germans have come to emphasize in their own minds the more attractive aspects of Naziism, such as full employment, public works, workers' vacations, etc.

"They joined almost universally with the smaller group that held Naziism to be a bad idea in condemning its odious features, such as persecution of minorities, etc."

Factory Layoffs Hit Four-Year Low Point

Factory layoffs were at the lowest level in four years in July, the Bureau of Labor Statstics reported yesterday.

Only six workers per 1000 employed were being laid off during July, although 19 persons per 1000 were voluntarily leaving their jobs in factories, the bureau reported.

The rate of hiring continued at a stepped up rate, due to the expanding industrial activity following the Korean invasion.

Hurricane Leaves 300 With No Food

GAINESVILLE, Fla., Sept. 5 (U.P.).—A 125-mile-an-hour hurricane marooned 300 persons without food or water at lonely Cedar Key today after giving the Clearwater resort area perhaps its most damaging blow in history.

Ten men were missing aboard a small tug in the wake of the hurricane off Tarpon Springs.

The small but intense storm lurched almost to a stop near the mouth of the Suwanee River after raking 150 miles of Florida Gulf Coast but was believed inching inland with diminishing intensity.

At 5:30 p. m. (EDT) advisory from the Miami weather bureau said heavy squalls and gale winds would spread over most of the north portion of Florida tonight and possibly extend into south Georgia later.

The Red Cross dispatched 275 gallons of water, chlorine and a truckload of food toward Cedar Keys, a fishing village on an island just off the west coast and connected to it by a bridge.

Editor Suggests U. N. Form U. S. Foreign Policy

DELAWARE, Ohio, Sept. 5 (U.P.). The editor of the Christian Century suggested today that formation of the United States foreign policy be left up to the United Nations.

Dr. Paul Hutchinson, speaking at the Ohio area Methodist pastors' school at Ohio Wesleyan University, said "neither the Truman doctrine nor the 'Stassen doctrine' outlined by . . . Harold Stassen in a recent radio address offers hope of a United States foreign policy leading to a firm peace.

"About our only hope is a revolution in our foreign policy which would make the United Nations the forum in which it would formulate and the tribunal to which it would be continually submitted for approval and review.

"We are now acting in Korea as an agent of the U. N. under a U. N. flag, with our troops taking orders from a U. N. commander who reports to the U. N."

Truman Nominates Rice for Tax Court

President Truman yesterday nominated Stephen E. Rice of Florida to be a judge of the United States Tax Court.

The nomination, subject to confirmation by the Senate, is for the unexpired term of William W. Arnold, who has resigned. The term expires June 2, 1956.

For the last two years Rice has been legislative counsel for the Senate.

TEANECK, N. J., Sept. 5 (U.P.)—A light plane smashed in a residential street here tonight killing one person and critically injuring another, police reported.

Police said the victims had not yet been identified but that both were in the plane. The ship had radioed Teterboro Airport that it was heading for the field but having trouble.

Finances of Met Called Very Serious

NEW YORK, Sept. 5 (U.P.).—The Metropolitan Opera Association is "in an extremely serious financial condition," Rudolph Bing, general manager, said today.

He cited retention of the 20-percent amusement tax and the fact the Met must pay social security and unemployment taxes this season.

Tito Government Assails Korean Aggression

BELGRADE, Yugoslavia, Sept. 5 (AP).—Premier-Marshal Tito's government tonight condemned North Korean aggression and said that it brings the peace of the world into danger.

Yugoslavia's position was made clear in a statement by Edvard R. Kardelj, Foreign Minister, to the newspaper Borba just before he left for New York to attend the United Nations General Assembly.

It was the first time Yugoslavia has taken a definite position on the Korean war.

Kardelj said "those who are to be blamed for the war in Korea must know that such a war will jeopardize the world peace, stir up all the powers of aggression, start the war machine of the great powers and on all sides sharpen the international conflict."

The Foreign Minister said "armed action of the North Korean government does not lead towards a real liberation of the Korean people." He added that the war endangers "all those achievements for which the Koreans have already fought."

Kardelj said Yugoslavia would regard the war in Korea as against its policy of opposing foreign intervention in the internal affairs of other countries.

Yugoslav Drought Puts Economy in Jeopardy

BELGRADE, Sept. 5 (U.P.).—The 1950 drought in Yugoslavia has reached serious proportions.

The whole economy of this independent Communist nation is in jeopardy as a result of the most arid summer in the memory of its 15 million people.

Thus the position of Premier Marshal Tito's government—its fight for survival against Moscow—is more difficult than at any time since the Cominform break 27 months ago.

Because of the lack of rain in some areas for as much as five months, the poorer regions of Yugoslavia have yielded as little as 10 percent of 1949 crops. In regions famous for their abundant grain harvests, such as Slavonia, Vojvodina, Srem—the yield is down 50 percent in corn, beans, hops, hemp and fruit.

What this blow from nature adds up to primarily is that Yugoslavia will not be able to keep its export commitments

Dispersion

To those who are applying their brains to ways and means of protecting the Capital city against air attack, let us commend an idea that would accomplish several purposes at once. One of our great local problems is traffic congestion at all the entries to the city's arteries. Workers who live outside the metropolitan area have a habit of using their automobiles up to the city limits, and then of using bus transport for getting to their places of employment. The result is the creation of long lines of densely parked cars at or near bus terminals. If there is dispersion, the traffic problem will be intensified. New and better roads have been suggested, but what should be taken into account is the possibility of building underground garages. This is a plan that has been bruited in New York City. Underground garages would be underground shelters in time of attack; they would pay for the shelters; they would relieve the traffic problem; they would be the beginning of the subway system which this fast-growing metropolis sometime or other will require.

Gentlemen's Agreement

The Senate resorted to a most unusual expedient to defeat passage of the O'Mahoney-Connally excess profits tax amendment to the interim tax bill. It voted for an amendment in the nature of a substitute directing the House Ways and Means Committee and the Senate Finance Committee to report out a retroactive excess profits tax "as early as possible" during the next session.

Of course, the present Congress cannot bind another Congress to follow its instructions. There is not even any certainty that the composition of the Ways and Means Committee and the Finance Committee of the next Congress will be unchanged; Senator Douglas reminded the Senate that political fortunes ebb and flow, and new committees might ignore the Senate's instructions. The chief purpose of this extraordinary proceeding was doubtless to protect Senators opposed to the O'Mahoney proposal from political attacks by voters back home who believe that the interim tax bill favors corporations at the expense of individual taxpayers. Senators who indorsed the gentlemen's agreement can point to it as evidence of their desire to exact sacrifices from industry as well as other taxpayers.

While we are glad that the Senate succeeded in delaying action on excess profits taxation, we hope it will not make a practice of voting for gentlemen's agreements shifting responsibility for passing legislation to a new Congress that may or may not recognize an obligation to consider the wishes of its predecessor, or, as in this case, the wishes of the 42 Senators who voted for the George-Millikin substitute for the O'Mahoney-Connally excess profits tax amendment.

Televised Diplomats

Sir Gladwyn Jebb has now taken over the lead role in the United Nations television drama and Jacob A. Malik's role of villain (at least to American spectators) has been subordinated. Sir Gladwyn, British delegate to the Security Council, is the president for the month of September and already was on his way to become a television matinee idol as a result of both his appearance and his rapier-like thrusts at the Soviet's Malik when the latter was president during August. Now, as presiding officer, he will meet a new test of popularity, also the challenge of erasing the televised impression that the Council does nothing but argue.

The televised diplomats are the talk of everyone who follows the Security Council meetings by video. Fans of the photogenic Indian delegate, Sir Benegal Rau, argue his sincerity and lofty-mindedness, and those of Jebb praise their man's poise and brilliant sarcasm. Some spectators are delighted, others critical, when Warren R. Austin, the American delegate, gets "mad" and shows it. Mr. Malik's stubborn, robot-faced technique enrages most American onlookers; yet some students of the Asian mind say it would go across well with eastern onlookers. Certainly television, which reveals every gesture and shade of expression, is putting a premium on the deportment of diplomats. Generally speaking, the calm, polished graduate of what is called old school diplomacy seems to have the advantage.

This success of the U. N. on television has brought a wider popular interest in the world organization. Fan mail has greatly increased.. Telephone lines to headquarters are often blocked during and after a televised Security Council meeting. Some callers, in direct American fashion, demand to speak personally to Mr. Malik. Attendance has greatly increased and television screens operate in four conference rooms, as well as in the delegates' lounge, to accommodate the crowds. As yet, all this television interest is limited to the United States and Britain, which have national networks, though proceedings are to be retelevised in France and (it is said!) the Soviet Union. It may be a long time before U. N. proceedings are flashed by screen to remote areas, but eventually people in most parts of the world will be able to make this closer check on those who represent them.

Truman On The Marines

President Truman's letter to Representative McDonough of California concerning the Marine Corps is one of those blunders in statesmanship that are all the more egregious for being utterly unnecessary. Mr. McDonough had written to the President in support of the proposal by the Marine leadership that the corps be represented with the Army, Navy and Air Force on the Joint Chiefs of Staff.

Now there are, to be sure, good reasons why this proposal should be rejected. But there was no reason whatever for the President to suggest, as he did in his answer to Mr. McDonough, that the Marine Corps owes a good deal of its reputation to "a propaganda machine that is almost equal to Stalin's." At this stage of affairs such a comparison was, to put it very mildly, a gratuitous insult to the members of the corps, and especially to those Marines who are now doing a share of the fighting in Korea.

It is true enough that the Marine Corps is given to self-glorification, but the same thing is true of most military organizations, especially those which set great value on the quality called esprit. It is the Marine's belief that he belongs to a kind of elite force that compensates him for the more rigorous training and discipline he is expected to endure. But as far as the political objects of service propaganda are concerned, it is highly doubtful whether the Marines' "propaganda machine" has been anywhere nearly as effective as, say, that of the Air Force.

Of course, an intense jealousy has long existed between the Marines and the other branches of the service. It is shared for somewhat different reasons by both the leadership and the ranks. On occasion it has worked a good deal of mischief, as, for example, in the disgraceful controversy between the two Generals Smith over the Saipan campaign. But certainly the President of the United States ought to be above the kind of pettiness that might have been pardonable in the commander of Battery D.

The President also stated in his letter to Mr. McDonough that as long as he is the Commander-in-Chief, the Marines will remain nothing more than "the Navy's police force." But, as a matter of fact, the practice of using Marines for provost duty in Naval posts was a considerable source of friction, and was wisely discontinued a good many years ago. The Marines certainly have a bigger role than the President made out, and have been unworthily minimized in his letter.

Vargas And Peron

Five years ago this month a strange inscription appeared overnight on thousands of buildings and walls throughout Brazil with the aid of state police. It was "Queremos Getulio" (We want Getulio) and it represented the bid of President Getulio Vargas to renege on his promise of new elections and to hold onto power in a country which he had turned into a corporate state dictatorship on the model of Italy. It was Vargas' obvious determination to welsh on his promise that led to the army uprising in October, 1945, and his subsequent ouster. After a short interval the election was held and President Eurico Gaspar Dutra was the victor. Since then his government has waged an uphill battle against inflation, but has done an impressive job of restoring and maintaining a free press and civil liberties.

It is not surprising that after five years during which he has remained a tempestuous figure, Vargas should be seeking a comeback in the October 3 Brazilian presidential election. Nor is it surprising that anti-Americanism and none-too-veiled support from the Peron government in Argentina should be two of his chief stocks in trade. Peron and Vargas are potentially two of a kind. Vargas was shrewd enough to switch his allegiance from the Axis to the United States at the outbreak of World War II, but his basic orientation is evidenced by his resort to the familiar cry that Adolf A. Berle, jr., (then Ambassador to Brazil) and Assistant Secretary of State Braden caused his downfall. Argentine influence in the election is manifest, with Peron-dominated newspapers daily extolling the virtues of Vargas against capitalist plot and vilifying the Dutra government.

What a Vargas victory could mean is well described by Robert J. Alexander, writing in the New York Herald Tribune. Mr. Alexander observes:

> Not only is he (Vargas) anti-United States, but he is on friendly terms with President Peron, and together they could form a strong bloc in Latin America, which could engage in a kind of diplomatic blackmail which would be very unfortunate for the United States and for the fight against aggression and totalitarianism.

The ironic part is that the failure of Brazil's major parties to agree on an opposition candidate splits the field and puts a premium on Vargas' type of wily demagoguery. That is why it is so important to American interests in the hemisphere both to keep a wary eye on Peron's well known proclivities for trying to manipulate elections, and to refrain from moves, such as the ill-timed and misguided coffee report, which might give ammunition to Vargas.

Soviet Intervention

Seven days before the aggression in Korea broke out on June 25, this newspaper wrote that the first principle of defense policy in the Far East should be to "keep the sea lanes . . . secure against aggressors." We went on: "Here shooting would be justified in the manner of the recent Russian treatment of an American airplane in the Baltic—at gunrunners either from Vladivostok or from the ports of Communist China or at Chinese Nationalist blockaders." A Truman declaration of intent to that effect was made along with the U. N. decision seven days later to repel the aggressor in Korea.

Till this weekend, however, force has been used only against North Korean aggressors. Chiang's air strike on Quemoy was made without protest. Whether Communist China has been getting away with gunrunning to the Viet Minhese in Indo-China or to the Huks in the Philippines is indeterminable. Doubtless, in spite of the incessant propaganda from Chiang's headquarters in Formosa, there is none to speak of; otherwise the Seventh Fleet would have been in action. In Korea the Russians, again in spite of the propaganda from Formosa, have hitherto been content to let the Koreans do the fighting. However, a twin-engined bomber out of Vladivostok has now been brought down, while attacking U. N. ships off Korea, and the bomber has been found to be Russian-manned. Evidence in the shape of the identification papers of a Russian member of Russia's own armed forces was found on the only body that was recovered.

You could have imagined what the Soviet's Malik said when this damning fact of actual Soviet participation on the side of the North Korean aggressors was aired in the Security Council. Provocation, if not aggression. We attacked the Russians either while they were on vacation or while they were engaged in target practice. We say "we," for, though the vessel that shot down the plane was British, it was a unit in the United Nations forces. There is less excitement here in Washington than at Lake Success over the tit-for-tat shooting. For such an incident had long been expected, as the Russians overreached themselves in their anxiety to push the Koreans into destruction, and this was doubtless the reason for the speed with which the incident was reported to Secretary General Lie. The news came in about midnight, Sunday night, and half an hour later Ambassador Austin's deputy, Mr. Ernest Gross, was reporting in person to the Secretary General. Good diplomatic work!

The Big Truth

The ultimate prize in the conflict between democracy and communism is the mind of man. The Russians have been vying for this prize with tough realism, while here in America—where we pride ourselves on expertness in the arts of persuasion and publicity—we have engaged at best in mere counterpunching, and often all too feebly. The National Committee for a Free Europe, a private organization under the chairmanship of former Ambassador Joseph C. Grew, has undertaken a Crusade for Freedom designed to set the American case before the world more forcefully and more effectively. The crusade is to be directed by General Clay and was inaugurated with a Nation-wide broadcast Monday evening by General Eisenhower.

The committee already operates one powerful radio station in western Germany—Radio Free Europe—and aims to establish, through private contributions, a broadcasting network which will be given, as General Eisenhower put it, "the simplest charter in the world: 'Tell the truth.'" The truth needs to be told, of course, with vigor and with skill. The State Department's Voice of America has done its job as well as the relatively meager funds allotted to it by Congress would permit; its potential effectiveness has been attested by the fact that the Russians have devoted no fewer than a thousand transmitters to "jamming" its programs. It needs to be supplemented by stations operated without the restraints and diplomatic conventions that are imposed by Government sponsorship.

The Soviet propagandists have been telling the world that Americans are decadent and disunited and at the same time that they are engaged in an imperialist campaign to subjugate the world. Unfortunately, this nonsense, dinned over and over again into ears that hear no contradiction, may be believed. We must, said General Eisenhower, "fight the big lie with the big truth." The fight is as important in its way as the physical struggle going forward in Korea; the two are in any case inseparable, since they are simply different spearheads of the same aggression. The American story can be told with pride and with conviction, and with the certainty that, if told well, it will win the adherence of men everywhere. The truth has at least one enormous advantage over the lie: it can be proved.

DEDICATION FOR A BOOK OF POEMS

There is one about whom I never made facile rhymes,
Who was dear to me as only a lover is dear:
He was hawk-lean; his eyes were the color of limes;
He died in our youth—has been dust for many a year.
I have nothing to tell that had not been better said
Before all currents were slowed—the tongue frost-bitten—
But this I would cry in remembrance of one long dead:
He loved me truly; for him my words are written.

"Matthews Vs. Acheson"

I wish to call attention to the fact that in your editorial of August 28, "Matthews vs. Acheson," you have given the reader the very distinct impression that Mr. James Burnham is in agreement with Secretary of the Navy Matthews in suggesting that we should compel peace by instituting military operations against the Soviet Union—the so-called "preventive war."

Whether the editorial intended this or not, it is worth pointing out that Mr. Burnham has definitely rejected this idea in his recent book, "The Coming Defeat of Communism." On page 147, after considering and dismissing the moral aspects of the question, he says: "Whether or not to begin a full military war is a problem of expediency. If so, we must determine whether such an act is in truth expedient, now. It seems to me that it is not, for the following reasons."

He then proceeds to list three reasons against taking such a step. He concludes the chapter by mentioning certain circumstances that might change his view (and they are circumstances which might change the minds of many of us). But they represent events which have by no means come to pass since the writing of the book, so I think it is fair to say that Mr. Burnham has not changed his mind about this in the interval.

Your editorial seems to put Mr. Burnham and the Secretary of State in opposite camps on the matter of how the common objective can best be attained. I should like to venture the opinion that that is no longer true. I have no doubt that there are serious differences of opinion between these schools as to what the situation is and what should be done about it, but it seems to me that since about March of this year we have begun to abandon the idea of "containment" which you say is the formal policy of the Administration. Mr. Acheson's "total diplomacy," as described in his California speeches and before, has closed a good deal of the gap between Administration policy and "the offensive political warfare" which Mr. Burnham insists is "the only rational alternative to immediate armed attack."

Admittedly, we are not now seeing "total diplomacy" in action, but if Congress were to give the green light to the type of counteroffensive that Mr. Acheson wishes to begin, instead of badgering him and hampering him at every turn, Mr. Burnham would be, not satisfied, but at least greatly heartened. And so also would be many of the rest of us.

Reply From Montgomery

Your editorial of September 4, "Reply To Montgomery," states that the purpose of your editorial of August 30 was not to place blame for inflation upon cost-of-living wage adjustments, but to emphasize the futility of attempting to fight inflation by such means. Walter Reuther shares that opinion with The Washington Post. That is why he sent to the President and to congressional leaders the wire to which your editorial refers.

You will understand why I was perplexed. Having the same purpose as Reuther, you expounded it not by publishing what he said in that wire, but by taking strong exception to those excerpts from his wire which you did publish. This is why I asked you to publish a fair sample of what his wire said, so that your readers might know his views as well as your rejoinder.

A little girl wrote an essay on pins. Describing pins and their uses, it ended with: "Pins save many peoples lives by not swallowing them." I trust that when she grew older she refrained from saying: "Editorials make up many peoples minds by not reading them."

Speaking of taxes—there is still time to inform the taxpaying public about the billion dollars worth of new tax loopholes for wealthy taxpayers in the pending bill. It doesn't go to conference until next Monday, September 11, a week from today.

"Faith Of Our Fathers"

I would like to commend your editorial of September 3, "Faith Of Our Fathers." My wife and I, to our surprise, found it quite stirring, in addition to good entertainment. We had expected nothing more than a colorful pageant, loosely woven together and probably a little boring to sit through. In fact, we went to see it more out of a sense of civic duty and cultural obligation rather than in expectation of the treat it turned out to be.

The play really deserves more boosting by the newspapers. It is a shame to see so many empty seats wasted just because people don't seem to know how good a show this, a by now well-seasoned, theatrical organization is putting on.

Making Foreign Policy

President Truman's so-called crackdown on General MacArthur is clearly justified. For it was necessary to maintain the established principle that foreign policy is made by the President and the Secretary of State, by and with the consent of the Senate, and not by any general, no matter how much he may be loved by the Administration's opponents.

This principle of where authority lies is plain. Generals do not and should not be allowed to make foreign policy. That is the job of the elected representatives of the people and the President, with the advice of the Senate.

On the issue, too, the President is right and the general is wrong. We have the backing of the United Nations for our resistance to aggression in Korea. The President has announced that we will use our fleet to prevent an attack on Formosa by the Chinese Communists, and that the final disposition of that island will be determined by the United Nations.

But that is not what the general said in his planned speech for the Veterans of Foreign Wars. He said that we should determine the disposition of Formosa. If that became our policy in place of the one announced by the President, it would reduce our influence and prestige in the United Nations by making other countries think we were guilty of imperialist aggrandizement, and might reduce their support of our fight in Korea.

Surely the people must realize that the Republican Senators who are backing MacArthur are urging on us a policy which would be universally regarded as imperialist, rather than our present policy of resisting aggression with the backing of other democratic nations.

"Spanish Chances"

In your editorial "Spanish Chances" you question not only the sanity, but the patriotism of the elected Representatives and Senators of this country. Perhaps the United States should be governed by editorial writers and not by democratic methods. The people, however, have long ago decided otherwise as both President Roosevelt and President Truman have demonstrated.

Permit me to make a few remarks about your main contention against Spain—that it would hurt the feelings of other Europeans to help the Spanish nation. Twice in the past two years the Spanish government has had to make it clear to France that only French women and children would be permitted across the Spanish border, in case of a Russian attack. There is no war in Europe now, but Spain is already crowded with fleeing Frenchmen who prefer their skins to both democracy and France. The Rev. John J. Cavanaugh, president of the University of Notre Dame, just back from Europe says, about French and Italian resistance to Russia, "If Russia closes off the possibility of another front by coming through France and Italy, should we greet them at the border or resist?" This is the question being asked in both France and Italy, says Dr. Cavanaugh, and he gives the French-Italian answer as follows: "They Think Their Better Chance Is To Greet." (New York Times, September 1.) These are the soldiers that are to defend America and democracy against communism. Neither in Spain nor in the Spanish army is there such treason and fifth-columnism. This is known to every American soldier who has been to Spain.

The French and English do not want Spain to participate in American bounty, not for democratic reasons at all, but because they do not want the cow to be milked by another hired man. Money to Spain is less money to France and England. This is the measure of their democracy. Says Dr. Cavanaugh, "The man on the street in France believes Stalin could take Paris by telephone." The United States needs the help of an army with guts, not a mob of existentialists.

Hiring Halls

We call your attention to the Magnuson-Lesinski bill now pending in Congress which seeks to exempt maritime unions from certain aspects of the "Taft-Hartley Law" and thereby allow them to retain their "Hiring Halls."

To appreciate the real need for such an institution it is necessary to study the history of the maritime industry-labor relations prior to and after the establishment of "Hiring Halls."

The stability that the "Hiring Hall" has lent labor-management relations is not only attested to by all the maritime unions, but also by the majority of the shipping companies who recognize in them a definite necessity; as also does the Federal Mediation and Conciliation Service.

The issue then resolves to the fact that it is an outside, alien force which seeks to impose its will upon the industry and bring chaos.

As to Senator Taft's recent press comment that no union would fight for the "Hiring Halls," we refer him to a joint seven-union statement made March 20, 1950, in Washington, D. C., to confirm that they will.

Hazard Of The Half Educated

By Malvina Lindsay

Back To School Drive

TWO THREATS to national strength are being brought into focus as the opening of school approaches. One is the teen-ager who wants to take a job rather than go back to school, especially now that a heightened defense economy may give him a chance to earn more money than he is worth. Another is the tragic youth who wants to "finish school" and can't.

Yet, never have such great efforts been under way to get children back to school—by educators, communities and notably the Department of Labor. For it is recognized that in the demanding days—or years—ahead, the country can't afford too many job floaters, dead-enders or fourth graders.

The large number of men rejected for service in the last war because they lacked enough schooling to pass a fourth-grade test is being recalled today. Also there is the normal economy problem of 10 million low-income families—recently the subject of a congressional investigation, which found they were mostly headed by persons of little education. Furthermore the growth of industrialism is making fifth wheels of the uneducated and unskilled, who thus become easier prey of authoritarians peddling panaceas.

However, this month, for the first time, boys and girls under 16 who are hired to work on farms will be required by law to go to school. These, frequently the children of migrant laborers, contribute heavily to the country's adult fourth graders. Labor protection to them on the same basis as that of children in industry was extended by Congress last year. Now they cannot work during school hours on farms whose products go into interstate and foreign commerce. This law, however, does not apply to children working on their parents' farms.

BUT MORE than passing a law is needed to get these children into school. Consider the case of Jim B., reported by the Bureau of Labor Standards. Jim, 17, will soon be one of the country's adult fourth graders. He has been working in the fields since a small child as his family followed the crops up the Eastern seacoast. Constantly falling behind in school, he finally dropped out.

Today Jim, in poor health, physically unfit to work in the fields is wistful to "finish school." But how to keep four younger brothers and sisters in school in what the family calls "back home" is the immediate problem, especially since work in the northern fields may last well into the fall. Then there's the question of clothes. And one little girl, Sadie Loo, is behind in her school work because she desperately needs glasses.

The family lives in a labor camp in two small dark rooms. Diet is inadequate since there is no way to keep milk and meat. Jim, eager to better family fortunes, is handicapped in getting a better job because of his lack of health and education.

With more of these migrant children expected at school this fall, communities will need to take up where the law leaves off. Many of these children lack proper clothes for school. Often they are anemic, even diseased. Books and transportation may be an insurmountable expense.

ALSO RURAL education must be improved if it is to help these children. There must be better teachers, elimination of the kind Jim B.'s brothers and sisters describe as letting the children fight among themselves, even sit all day without getting a lesson. "She just don't care," they say.

Today illiteracy is more than twice as great among rural as urban dwellers. Three times as many farm as city children are not enrolled in school. It is estimated that about 180,000 boys and girls under 16 were doing paid work last year on commercial farms during school hours.

Yet the city also is turning out too many of the partly educated. These are boys and girls who once they reach the legal working age of 16, turn from school to industry. Now manpower shortage may give the quit-school movement further impetus hence educators and community organizations are urging the three million teenagers in summer jobs to go back to school.

One argument presented them is that men in the armed services get ahead much faster if they have high school educations. Another is that even with manpower shortage those lacking education and skill reach their dead ends in industry earlier. Finally there is the patriotic appeal that boys and girls 16 and 17 can best serve their country by getting all the education possible.

Safety Parade

I do not know who was responsible for the automobile safety parade which I happened to see up town today.

At first I was shocked at the ghastly sight of the coffins and the automobiles. But I then realized that such a presentation was a splendid means of impressing our public with the importance of safe driving.

The insurance float with the "killed" boy lying in the road almost made me physically sick. But it was good for me. Never again will I fail to slow down when I pass a school area.

My shocking congratulations for the organization which produced this excellent parade.

Jam in Congress

By Marquis Childs

Confusion On The Hill

Anyone who has ever watched a herd of cattle trying each one to push through the same gate can get an idea of the atmosphere in Congress in these closing days. Yippee, the stampede is on!

It's all quite understandable. Back home, in a great many instances, the opposition has long been out on the hustings. And if the Senator or the Congressman flies back for a two or three-day shot of campaigning, the opposition demands in ringing public tones to know why the Representative of the Umpteenth District is not in Washington doing his duty by the confused and unhappy yet God-fearing and hard-working people of the Umpteenth.

But while it is understandable, it is likely to have some pretty unhappy consequences. In the words of the prayer book, those things are done which ought not to be done and those things are left undone which ought not to be left undone.

An example in each category comes to mind at once. The House has passed bills granting Statehood to both Alaska and Hawaii. But apparently the Senate will not act before the recess.

Several times President Truman has nudged Majority Leader Scott Lucas on Alaska and Hawaii. Lucas replies that to bring up the Statehood bills will be to invite a filibuster by Southern Democrats, who don't want four more members added to the club, especially since one or two of them might be Eurasians.

But others who have canvassed the Senate disagree. They believe the votes are readily available to pass both bills and they doubt if the whole business would take more than a day of the Senate's time. The President said at his press conference that adequate defense for the two territories cannot be assured unless they achieve Statehood.

Meanwhile, unpleasant rumors are circulating about the way in which powerful Alaskan interests have worked to block approval of Statehood. From Alaska comes the report that canners with operations there have raised 150,000 dollars to use in a last-minute blocking effort. This is said to have been distributed judiciously with special reference to the campaign funds of Senators up for re-election.

Action on Alaska and Hawaii in the closing days could not be considered hasty. In the past three or four years a half dozen committees of Congress have gone to Alaska and Hawaii to make on-the-spot studies. Two or three sets of lengthy hearings have been held with witnesses pro and con heard for pages and pages on the record. If this Congress leaves without acting, then much of this will have to be done over again, including hearings and passage by the House.

In the category of steps taken in haste that may be regretted in a later and calmer mood is the anti-subversives bill. There are urgent measures to be taken to strengthen laws against espionage and subversion. They should have been taken months ago.

But the danger is that the Senate will pass the bill now before it, containing everything but the kitchen sink. That bill would put such a heavy burden on the FBI of supervising the registration of all Communists and many fellow-travelers that, according to Attorney General McGrath, the really dangerous agents schooled in espionage might escape.

Of course, it also gives to a Subversives Control Broad power to determine, under broad and loose definition, who is a fellow-traveler. In other words, it would tend to give this board a power over the thoughts of free Americans. That always has been abhorrent in a country where honest dissenters (as distinguished from Communists who are part of a foreign conspiracy) have had the right to express themselves. It raises, too, a constitutional question and the possibility of a challenge in the courts that could for a considerable period delay the operation of the law.

In this last-minute jam there is always a lot of politics. If the Congress should send to the White House an unconstitutional antisubversives bill, which is perhaps also unworkable, it would be a political hot potato. A presidential veto probably would be used by Republicans who have been accusing the Administration of being "soft" to communism.

But veto of an all-or-nothing bill would also mean that essential steps to lighten espionage laws would not be taken. And that happens to be directly related to the security of this country.

Substitute Red Detention Bill Drafted Along British Lines

bill, largely as is, over a presidential veto if necessary.

The Red detention measure, not yet formally released, would authorize internment of Communists, foreign-trained saboteurs and others regarded as a threat to internal security the moment the United States is attacked.

A so-called "trigger" provision would put the machinery into effect before the outbreak of actual hostilities if the President proclaimed an emergency affecting the National security. In that event, Congress would have to set the machinery in motion.

Safeguards written inot the substitute would provide for screening of internees to correct possible errors, appeals to special boards set up at the detention camps, and for final appeal to the courts.

Sponsors of the plan charged that the Mundt-Ferguson registration heart of the McCarran bill, widely billed as a crackdown on Communist and Communist-front organizations, even if wisely administered, would succeed merely in driving the Communist movement underground.

'Police State Method'

Kilgore termed the registration proposals "just damned harassment and a police state method with no real effect in an emergency."

Senator Karl Mundt (R., S. Dak.), leading author of the registration plan, tossed the "police state" charge back at the substitute plan, and charged its proponents merely wanted to kill the McCarran bill.

Working with Kilgore on the detention proposal are Senators Paul Douglas (D., Ill.), said to have suggested the plan, Hubert Humphrey (D., Minn.) and two members of the Judiciary Committee who joined Kilgore in a minority report on the McCarran bill, Senator Frank Graham (D., N. C.) and William Langer (R., N. Dak.).

Senate Democratic Leader Scott W. Lucas (Ill.) did not sit in on yesterday's talks. Lucas told newsmen he knew the substitute was being drafted, but had no comment for the time being. Lucas recently joined another group of Administraton Senators in introducing the President's more limited antisabotage proposals.

Need "Urgent," Boyle Says

As the Senate opened debate on the McCarran bill:

1. Democratic National Chairman William M. Boyle said the need for "effective" security legislation recommended by the President is "urgent." Said Boyle: "It is equally important that we avoid hysterical action which would do more harm than good."

2. Senator Herbert H. Lehman (D., N. Y.) said the McCarran bill is not only unconstitutional but will "endanger and not enhance" national security. He warned the Senate: "All of us may become victims of the gallows we erect for the enemies of freedom."

3. Senator McCarran said his bill will "fortify the home front even as we are fortifying our boys on the battlefields of Korea" and "meet realistically the challenge of our deadly enemy within our gates." He told the Senate: "This bill does not contain one iota of hysteria . . ."

The McCarran bill requires the Communist Party to register names of individual members with the Justice Department. Communist front organizations would register only their officers. Like the House-passed Wood bill, it would deny Federal jobs and work in defense plants to Communists, and require Red organizations to label their propaganda. Other provisions (1) deny passports to Communists, (2) provide for jailing of Communists whose native countries will not accept them back, (3) permit the Immigration Service to exclude second-string diplomats not considered good security risks and (4) pick up all of the President's more limited proposals along with central provisons of the Mundt-Ferguson bill.

County Welfare Ward, 4, Beaten to Death With Broom

FREMONT, Ohio, Sept. 5 (AP).—A 62-year-old woman beat 4-year-old Lynn Morris to death today with a broomstick because the frail girl would not put a shoe on, Sheriff Fred Paul said.

The sheriff said Mrs. Lula Ashton admitted she beat Lynn with a broomstick Saturday in a fit of anger.

"I got mad because she wouldn't put her shoe on," he quoted the gray-haired housewife.

The child died several hours later of a brain concussion, Coroner F. A. Vesconti said.

A county welfare ward, Lynn and her 2-year-old brother, Jimmie, had been at the Ashton home near Clyde since last March, the Sheriff said. The county took the children as wards from their unmarried mother.

Senate Unit Passes Peanut Bill, Pigeonholes Cotton Measure

By the United Press

The Senate Agriculture Committee yesterday pigeonholed a hotly-debated bill to revise the cotton acreage quota system.

Backers of the proposal said they believed there no longer is any chance to get the measure passed before Congress adjouns.

The committee, however, approved a new peanut acreage quota bill. Senator Ellender (D.-La.), acting chairman of the committee, told reporters the measure would permit different acreage quotas for different varieties of peanuts, with prospect it would result in bigger plantings of Vrginia and Carolina jumbo vareties.

The law now provides for a single over-all acreage quota for all varieties of peanuts.

Ellender said the committee voted, 5 to 2, to defer action on the cotton acreage bill.

Four Other Bills Dropped

He said the committee cleared its calendar of all pending legislation by consigning four other measures to pigeonholes. These proposed to:

Authorize the government to pay freight on surplus commdities being given away to nonprofit groups.

Establish a $900,000 training program at Missoula, Mont., for aerial forest fire fifihters—the so-called "smoke jumpers" who parachute into danger areas.

Authorize government-guaranteed loans for construction of wholesale terminal market facilities for perishable farm produce.

Transfer 34 acres of Federal property without charge to the State Forest Commission of Maryland for use as a parkway near Bethesda, Md.

Ellender and Senator Hoey (D., N. C.) were reported to have voetd for the cotton bill at the closed door hearing, and Senators Aiken (R., Vt.), Thye (R., Minn.), Young (R., N.D.), Holland (D., Fla.) and Anderson (D., N. M.) voted to shelve it.

1951, 1952 Acreage Quotas

Ellender said e tbhill would have authorized the Secretary of Agriculture to fix cotton acreage quotas for the 1951 and 1952 crops. The measure, he said, also would have provided that plantings in excess of the quotas would not be counted in computing future acreage quotas.

The existing law authorizes the fixing of quotas when production reaches a level 30 percent higher than the demand.

The law has been interpreted variously, however, and Ellender said the bill pigeonholed yesterday was designed to clarify disputed provisions.

The peanut bill would divide peanut plantings into three groups—Virginia-carolina, Runner and Spanish.

Ellender said it would be possible undre its terms to fix one acrease quota for the Virginia-Carolina varieties, and different quotas for the other two. Quotas would be fixed after referendum of the growers.

Fear of Chinese War Lessens

Formosan waters after the Korean war, (2) his speech of Friday reaffirming American friendship and peaceful intentions toward China, and (3) the prompt American admission that a pilot "may have" bombed and strafed Chinese territory in error. All these statements were made in the hope and belief that they would help to restrain the Chinese Communist leaders.

Meanwhile the British and Indian governments have indicated that they would support an American move to set up some kind of United Nations authority over Formosa pending the end of the Korean war and a peace settlement with Japan.

But these two governments, and probably others on the Security Council, will insist on one condition as a prerequisite. This is that a representative of Communist China be heard at Lake Success before the U. N. makes its decision. Foreign Minister Ernest Bevin of Great Britain was reported yesterday as feeling strongly that someone from Peiping be present during the coming U. N. discussions on Formosa.

There are ample precedents, notably the fact that Bulgaria and Albania were represented at Balkan debates at Lake Success, although neither of these Communist governments was a member of the U. N.

The United States would like to have the U. N. send a commission of inquiry to Formosa to examine charges of American "aggression," and to take testimony on the spot from interested parties, including Communist China.

But this woud not go far enough to satisfy the British and Indians, both of whom have recognized the Peiping government and want it present to state its case at Lake Success.

The Gallup Poll

Boys Are Far Easier to Bring Up Than Girls, Their Parents Say

By George Gallup
Director, American Institute of Public Opinion

PRINCETON, N. J., Sept. 5.—Try this true or false quiz. Can you tell which of these statements are true and which are false?

1. Most Americans prefer to drink their coffee black, without cream or sugar.

2. American men prefer a shower bath to a tub bath.

3. The favorite flower of American women is the rose.

4. Most parents say that boys are easier to raise than girls.

5. Seven out of every 10 adults prefer dogs to cats.

Here are the correct answers as shown in surveys by the American Institute of Public Opinion among a scientifically-selected cross-section of the adult population:

The first statement is false. Only one in five (18 percent) prefer black coffee, while 41 percent take cream and sugar, 20 percent cream only, 5 percent sugar only. The remaining 16 percent just don't drink coffee.

As for bathing, it is true that men prefer a shower to a tub. Women, however, prefer the conventional tub by a splashing 3-to-1 majority.

The third statement is true—roses are the overwhelming favorite of the American people, winning 18-to-1 over the next choice, gardenias.

Then come gladioli, carnations, tulips, lilies, lilacs, lily of the valley, violets, orchids, peonies, dahlias, chrysanthemums, pansies and camellias in that order.

pansies and camellias in that order.

No. 4 is true—parents interviewed in a national survey vote by about 2-to-1 that boys are easier to raise than girls.

And the last statement of the five is also true—dogs are preferred to cats.

Other Likes and Dislikes

A continuing check is made of the likes and dislikes of the American people through Institute surveys, as part of its studies dealing with life in the United States. Tastes and preferences in many fields—all the way from literature to baseball—are covered in these surveys. For example:

The favorite Christmas carol is "Silent Night," followed by "White Christtmas" and "Little Town of Bethlehem.' The all-time favorite popular tune is "Star Dust."

The greatest living author, in the opinion of those Americans who have a favorite, is George Bernard Shaw, with Somerset Maugham next, then Lloyd Douglas, Carl Sandburg, Winston Churchill, Sinclair Lewis and Ernest Hemingway.

The public thinks the funniest comedians on stage, television, radio or in the movies are Bob Hope, Milton Berle and Jack Benny.

The three greatest baseball players of all time are Babe Ruth, Ty Cobb and Lou Gehrig, says the typical American.

Who was the greater President—Washington or Lincoln? Americans say Lincoln 2-to-1.

Blondes vs. Brunettes

Men under 30 like colored finger nail polish on women's nails, men over 30 don't. Gentlemen do not prefer blondes—they vote 2-to-1 in favor of brunettes, who incidentally outnumber blondes 5-to-1 in the female population.

If all Americans had enough money to send their son to any college in the country, more of them would want him to go to Harvard than any other school.

The favorite month of the year is June, with May next and then October. The least liked month is February.

The most disliked vegetable is spinach.

The Nation's favorite superstition is knocking on wood to prevent bad luck. Throwing spilled salt over the shoulder is a favorite with one person in 10, while one in five believes that a black cat across the path means trouble—or says he believes it, anyway.

Mild Quake Is Felt In California Areas

RIVERSIDE, Calif., Sept. 5 (U.P.).—An earthquake of apparently mild intensity rocked Riverside today at 12:20 p. m. (PDT) (3:20 p. m., EDT). There were no immediate reports of damage.

California Institute of Technology's seismological laboratory at Pasadena said the quake also was felt in Los Angeles and in other areas of the county. Reports of the tremor came from as far as Beaumont, and it was felt at Laguna Beach, Corona and San Juan Capistrano.

Kidnaping Charge Dropped in Case Of Missing Girl

Kidnaping charges filed by the mother of a 15-year-old Landover Hills (Md.) girl against a 19-year-old youth 10 days ago were dropped yesterday after the pair returned home.

The mother, Mrs. Stanley A. Walter, of 4114 71st ave., swore out a warrant against Robert C. Armiger, of 4602 72nd ave, after he drove off from her home with her daughter, Mary Christine, shortly before midnight August 27. Mrs. Walter had told her daughter to remain in the house following a gathering of young people there, she said.

Mrs. Walter said the youngsters came home Saturday. She said Christine told her she stayed with an uncle near Warrenton, Va., and that Armiger stayed with a relative of his.

D. C. Nonchain Sales Expand 10% in July

By S. Oliver Goodman

July sales of Washington independent retailers surged 10 percent over the same 1949 month, the Census Bureau reported yesterday.

This brought dollar volume of the nonchain group for the first seven months to a level 4 percent higher than in the corresponding period last year.

Sharpest increases were in the auto and accessory fields. Auto sales here were up 28 percent for the month and motor accessory volume soared 43 percent. Next best gain was in building materials, up 31 percent.

Downturns were pronounced in such lines as jewelry, liquor and women's wear.

Individual nonchain stores fared as follows (comparisons with same period last year):

Alpha Portland Cement Co. announced price increases of 10 cents a barrel in bulk cement and 12 cents in paper bags, effective October 1 . . . This week's steel output rate is placed at 98 percent of capacity, compared with 97.1 percent in previous week . . . Rubber futures were up the permitted 2 cents a pound daily limit yesterday in New York.

MATERIALS: The Commerce Department predicted yesterday shortages in a number of building materials will continue through October, but supplies should be easier in late 1950 as a result of stepped-up production. Scarcity has produced higher costs for many materials, pushing up costs of houses and other construction, it was noted. This persists despite what the repartment reported as a new high during June in production of building materials. The department said shortages of cement, brick, gypsumboard and other materials this year have resulted not so much from lack of productive capacity as failure of producers to anticipate fully the record volume of home-building this year.

Morris Burak, Washington representative, has qualified to attend the Colorado Springs convention of Pan-American Life Insurance Co. . . . John M. Harris and Robert K. McCabe-Snyder Clash Involves High Policy, Not Personalities

By J. A. Livingston

ON FRIDAY, September 1, in the richly appointed meeting room of the Board of Governors of the Federal Reserve System, Secretary of the Treasury John W. Snyder was a polite, attentive onlooker as Edward Lee Norton of Birmingham, Ala., and Oliver S. Powell, of Minneapolis, Minn., were sworn in as governors. Snyder was full of handshakes and smiles. You'd never guess from his demeanor that the Treasury and the Reserve Board were miles apart on government financial policy.

Livingston

But a breach, like Hamlet's father's ghost, will be heard. After Norton and Powell had both promised to "defend the Constitution of the United States against all enemies, foreign and domestic," Snyder said his adieus. He couldn't stay for the buffet luncheon to follow. Nor could Under Secretary of the Treasury Edward H. Foley, jr. As Snyder was leaving, a newspaperman asked him: "Mr. Secretary, did you think that the oath pointedly referred to the Treasury as a domestic enemy?" Snyder beamed—he has a lusty sense of humor—and said that he'd pricked up his ears at those words, that he felt as if maybe he was being given the needle.

Beneath the jest, beneath the surface of peoples' smiles and behind their spoken words, you knew there was the everpresent thought "How are the Treasury and the Reserve Board going to work this out?" That though must have been in the mind of Thomas B. McCabe, chairman of the board, who has tried so hard to avoid a break. Surely, it must have been in Snyder's mind, too.

THE RIFT isn't susceptible to quick and easy mending. It has been going on too long. And it isn't the kind of thing that most people understand, so that Tom, Dick and Harry can take sides. It belongs to the arcana of high finance (to which I'll come later). Yet ultimately it will affect the broad and butter of all of us. It will determine the buying power of the dollar.

The clash started months before Pearl Harbor when the country was rearming. The Reserve Board felt that banks had an oversupply of "excess reserves," which might lead to free and easy lending. So on September 23, 1941, the board voted an increase in reserve requirements. That would put the lid on. The Treasury didn't like the idea at all. In his book, "The National Debt in War and Transition," Henry C. Murphy, who was assistant director of Treasury research and statistics during the war, writes:

"The increase in reserve requirements was opposed by most of the Treasury staff and was assented to by Secretary Morgenthau very reluctantly. It was the Treasury's position at this time and during most of the period of war finance that a considerable volume of excess reserves was necessary to assure the success of Government financing."

THE TREASURY argued that "general credit controls operating through interest rates . . . did not seem appropriate at a time when the Government was the principal borrower and the amount of its borrowings was determined by exigencies scarcely amenable to interest-rate control." The Treasury, according to Murphy, considered high taxation and direct-credit controls, such as Regulation W, restricting consumer credit, sufficient.

After Pearl Harbor, the Reserve Board capitulated. The Reserve Board wanted to raise short-term interest rates—even as now. The thought was that if banks earned a reasonable rate on short-term Treasury obligations they'd be less inclined to sell them every time they had a chance to make a loan. Also, if short-term rates were too low commercial banks would buy 2 percent and 2½ percent bonds, thus bidding them away from insurance companies, savings banks, and individual holders.

At a meeting on March 20, 1942, according to Murphy, Eccles and Allan Sproul, president of the Federal Reserve Bank of New York, urged on Morgenthau a rise in the short-term rate. "When Morgenthau objected, Chairman Eccles and Sproul each said that they held their views very strongly but that they would accept a directive from the Secretary as the person primarily responsible for financing the war, provided that he took the responsibility for the decision." Secretary Mongenthau agreed, and ultimately the pattern for war financing was established: ⅜% for three-month bills, ⅞% for 12-month certificates, 2% for 10-year bonds, and 2½% for long-term bonds.

THE DISAGREEMENT, though repressed, simmered all through the war and beyond Morgenthau's reign. Secretary Fred Vinson, who succeeded Morgenthau, held firm to the Treasury's position. When Vinson resigned to quiet the discord in the Supreme Court, Snyder clung to the position of his predecessors. Thus, what we have today is not a clash of personalities; it's not Eccles versus Morgenthau or Vinson, or McCabe versus Snyder. It's the Treasury versus the Reserve Board, a Battle of Institutions and institutionalized thinking. The Treasury is concerned with debt—low interest rates, the Reserve Board and credit control. And in times of inflation, the Reserve Board wants high interest rates which conflict with Treasury leanings.

(The second of three articles on this struggle between the Treasury and the Federal Reserve Board appears tomorrow.)

Israel Studies Selling Billion In Bonds Here

JERUSALEM, Sept. 5 (AP).—Most American Jewish leaders conferring here with Israeli officials and Jewish Agency representatives appeared today to favor an Israeli government bond issue to raise one billion dollars in the United States.

The money would be subscribed to finance the settlement of 600,000 Jewish immigrants in Israel in the next three years.

Robert R. Nathan, American economist, told the conference American Jewry should lend "the greater part" of one billion dollars to help Israel carry out its immigration plan.

Prime Minister David Ben-Gurion earlier declared the cost of settling 600,000 Jews from Europe, Africa and Asia would be about $1,500,000,000, two-thirds of which would have to come from abroad.

Moses A. Leavitt of New York, executive vice chairman of the Joint Distribution Committee, raised a voice of caution, however. He urged Israel to reconsider its policy of unlimited immigration "to avoid economic disaster."

Forged Vermeer Painting Brings $800 at Auction

AMSTERDAM, The Netherlands, Sept. 5 (U.P.).—The late Hans van Meegeren's notorious wartime forgery of Vermeer's "Jesus as a Young Man in the Temple" sold at public auction today for $800.

The painting, which van Meegeren sold profitably to a Nazi official, was so good it deceived critics. Van Meegeren proved it was a forgery by making another reproduction in his prison cell.

He died of a nervous disease within a few weeks after he was sentenced to one year in prison in November, 1947, and all his effects went on the block today to pay tax arrears.

Congressional Library Search Quickly Seen

CHICAGO, Sept. 5. — Science has the know-how to build a reading machine which could search the entire Library of Congress in 10 seconds, select all information on a given subject and print abstracts at the rate of 10 a minute, a Boston expert said today.

Dr. Calvin N. Mooers told the American Chemical Society convention that the methods already have been used to build smaller and slower devices.

He proposed that the bigger machine be built to digest the world's information and print it neatly on sheets of paper 20 feet long for storage in a single room.

Meanwhile the Society called on President Truman to prevent costly waste, by draft laws or otherwise, of the nation's scientific manpower and brains in time of emergency.

The society made the plea on behalf of its 63,000 member chemists and chemical engineers.

The society urges establishment of a definite plan "so that the training and special skills of scientists and engineers will be put to the best use in an emergency," and to keep a supply of new scientists coming from colleges.

Chicago Grain

CHICAGO, Sept. 5 (AP).—Late profit-taking at the Board of Trade pushed most deliveries to the day's low after all contracts in corn and oats had hit new seasonal highs. Until the last half hour offerings in all pits were light.

Trading was irregular at the start, with soybeans and lard showing strength on a better cottonseed oil market. Some little export business in wheat, 186,500 bushels to Norway, gave the bread grain a boost.

Light country offerings in corn and oats gave feed grains a good tone in early trading. At the finish, wheat unchanged to ½ cent lower; corn was ⅛ lower to ⅛ higher; oats were ¾ to 1⅛ higher; rye was ½ to 1⅜ higher; soybeans were unchanged to ½ higher, and lard was 12 to 22 cents a hundredweight higher.

Boy Chokes Girl, 7, to Death For Feeding Grapes to Dog

RAVENNA, Ohio, Sept. 5 (AP)—A 17-year-old boy who said he choked a little girl to death because she fed grapes to his dog was taken to Youngstown, Ohio, today for a mental examination.

Chunky Donald Overholt, a Ravenna senior with an addiction to crime comic books, related in a calm, unemotional voice that he killed Linda Hickman, 7, in a fit of anger, Police Chief John W. Brown said.

The child's body was found shortly before midnight under a heap of clothing in a closet of the apartment where Overholt lived.

Overholt's mother discovered the child, ending several hours' search by police, highway patrolmen and auxiliary forces.

Overholt told teh police chief the little girl, who was visiting here with her mother, Mrs. Marie Woods, of Knoxville, Tenn., wandered into the apartment in which he lives with his parents,, Mr. and Mrs. Francis Sirk. He said Linda started to feed his dog grapes. He said he told her to stop because it would make the dog ill.

When she didn't stop, he grabbed her from behind and choked her.

The youth was arrested early today after what he told Overholt was a visit to automobile races in nearby Barberton. No charges have been filed.

Tigers Slam Browns, 7-4, Trail Yanks by 1½ Games

This Morning

With Shirley Povich

Perhaps you've noticed that the Cleveland Browns have just stacked up five wins in a row over National Football League teams in pre-season exhibition games, and have yet to be licked. The old All-America Conference champions are smartly upholding the honor of their defunct league.

Povich

The snooty National League people used to say there was only one major football league, and the Browns are proving they may be right—and that the All-America was it. Anyway, it is no comfort to the Redskins to find themselves in the same division with Paul Brown's Clevelands.

The Chicago Bears were supposed to stop the Browns last week. They didn't, 27 to 23, but Coach Brown was in no wise elated by that victory over one of the perennial stalwarts of the NFL. He told his athletes they had played a ragged contest in that one, and he wasn't taking a four-point victory over the Bears as any sign that they were playing good football.

So far, the Browns have racked up the Bears, Lions, Packers, Steelers and Colts. And Quarterback Otto Graham, derided because his exploits were achieved in the old AAC, apparently is on his way to contest the NFL's best for all-league honors.

ORIGINALLY, the Eastern Division title was supposed to be a contest between the newcomer Browns, and the Philadelphia Eagles, the hold-over champions of the NFL. But lately there is a new respect for another team—the erstwhile downtrodden New York Yankees.

In the merger with the AAC, Owner Ted Collins grabbed off two of the top backs of the old league, George Ratterman and Buddy Young. To go with them, he came up with George Taliaferro, the dazzling colored back from the Big Ten. With all due respect to the Redskins, it's the Yankees who now bulk as the team that may give the Eagles and Browns the best battle in the Eastern division.

There is a stubborn school of thought in the pro league, incidentally, that the Bears' Johnny Lujack was not the best quarterback to graduate from Notre Dame in recent years, and that Ratterman was. The pro people give Lujack his due, and then declaim that Ratterman is every bit as good a passer, just as smart a play-caller, and a better ball-faker than Lujack.

THE CLUB that is having it rough are the poor Baltimore Colts, who have lost all six of their exhibition games and may find their season blighted, at least at the gate, even before it opens. Those regular beatings won't serve to make Baltimore the good football town it was supposed to be. You can't lose that many football games and keep the customers excited.

Up in Philadelphia, there's a disturbed feeling, too. The Eagles aren't sure that they'll have their man, Capt. Al Wistert, available at any point this season. He was the best thing in that good Eagles line, at tackle, and the guy who was opening those avenues for Steve Van Buren and the other Eagle backs. Wistert hurt his leg badly in the first minute of the College All Stars-Eagles game at Chicago in July.

The first real good line on what may happen in the Eastern Division of the league will be available on the night of September 16, when the Browns move against the Eagles at Philadelphia in the league opener. That one, destined to set a new attendance record, may leave a lasting effect on the entire Eastern Division race. Out in Cleveland, Brown is saying he never wanted to win a game as much as that one.

THE REDSKINS have been exciting to this point, with their four wins in a row including defeats of the Rams and the Cardinals. They are stacking up as perhaps the best Redskin team in a half dozen years. Washington fans are hopeful, however, that the Redskins have been winning on merit—not out-conditioning teams that haven't attained the same physical edge in the pre-season games.

Coach Herman Ball, who quickly junked Sammy Baugh's static formula of a play into the line, two passes and a punt, when he took charge of the team last season, apparently has stepped up the Redskin running game. And if the reports that Harry Gilmer is ready at last to step into a full-fledged quarterbacking job are believable, then the Redskins are, indeed, a more exciting team.

Ball has already done one service for Redskin fans with his decision to restore Sammy Baugh to the punting role that he could always do better than anybody else in the league. He also is saying that Baugh will bring the quick-kick back to the Redskins. Baugh's passes can get boring, but his punting, never.

LOOKOUT! DUCK—This king-sized soccer ball struck Gilbert Friedberg, Boston Globe cameraman, a moment after he snapped the shot at the sixty-first annual Scottish Picnic near Brookline, Mass. Booted by Jimmy Harcus of Clan Sutherland, the ball knocked Friedberg out for a moment and damaged his camera. The intrepid lensman didn't recall making the picture and only discovered it when he developed his film later

Evers, Wertz Lead Attack; Tribe Wins

DETROIT, Sept. 5 (AP).—The Detroit Tigers slammed out 16 hits tonight as they whipped the St. Louis Browns, 7 to 4, to climb within a game and a half of the American League-leading New York Yankees who did not play today.

Hot Evers led the attack that overcame an early 3-0 deficit with four singles. Vic Wertz and Johnny Lipon each had three hits.

Shortstop Johnny Lipon was charged with three errors during that early Browns' offensive with Herbert trailing 3-0 when lifted for a pinchhitter in the fourth.

The Tigers tied things up in that inning as they ganged up on losing pitcher Duane Pillette for four hits and a walk, good for three runs.

They got to him again for two more tallies in the seventh before relief pitcher Clarence Marshall halted the rally. Marshall was touched for a pair of runs in the eighth in which five hits rattled off Tiger bats.

Carrasquel's Error Loses for Chisox, 3-2

CHICAGO, Sept. 5 (U.P.).—"Chico" Carrasquel's wild throw with two out in the tenth inning enabled the Cleveland Indians to score a 3 to 2 victory over the Chicago White Sox before a slim gallery of 2577 today.

Steve Gromek limited Chicago to five hits to post his eighth victory against six losses. Carrasquel's error enabled Lou Boudreau to score the winning run. Boudreau, who singled, replaced Luke Easter who hurt his back falling down after fouling a pitch in the fourth.

Bud Curtis and Jack Dillon, whose wrestling bout at Turner's Arena last week ended in no contest when the pair threw Referee Benny Bortnick out of the ring, try again tonight at Turner's arena.

Nats Buy Jones, .367 East Texas Home-Run Hitter

The Nats yesterday announced purchase of a .367-hitting outfielder, Jack Jones, from the Longview club of the Class C East Texas League.

He'll join the Nats after the East Texas playoffs. The 22-year-old Jones stands 6 feet, 2 inches tall, and bats and throws lefthanded. He was recommended by Tex Jeannes, former Nat outfielder.

Jones has made 154 hits in 108 games for 270 total bases. Twenty-five of his blows have been for homers, and he has batted across 120 runs. Four of his homers came with the bases loaded.

Art Larsen Upsets Flam For U. S. Title

By Gayle Talbot

FOREST HILLS, Sept. 5 (AP).—A game little lefthander named Art Larsen, out of San Francisco, put on a tremendous rally today to defeat favored Herbie Flam of Beverly Hills, Calif., 6-3, 4-6, 5-7, 6-4, 6-3 in the final of the National Tennis Championships before 8,000 fans.

Trailing by a set at the intermission and apparently ready to be tucked away, the corn-haired scrapper from the Bay region came roaring back to thrill the crowd with brilliant, all-court tennis in the final two sets and become the first southpaw champion in 20 years. Johnny Doeg, in 1930, was the last portsider to win the title before Art did it today.

Earlier, on the wind-swept stadium court Mrs. Margaret Osborne duPont of Wilmington, Del., won her third straight women's singles title by subduing Doris Hart of Jacksonville, Fla., 6-3, 6-3. She also beat Miss Hart in the finals last year.

The final outcome of the men's division represented one of the greatest form upsets in years. Larsen was seeded only sixth among the American entrants in the championships and was only the sixth-ranking player in the country last year. Flam, the loser, was seeded No. 2 on the home list.

Flam, the 21-year-old clay court and intercollegiate champion, tried. After losing the opening set, he steadied, slowed down the pace against his high-strung opponent and ran off the next two in such business-like fashion the result seemed no longer in doubt.

But Larsen, after losing the first two games of the fourth set, dug

A's Play Nats Here Tonight

Sandy Consuegra, a winner over the Tigers in his last outing, takes the mound for the Nats tonight against their most troublesome opposition of the season—the seventh-place Athletics.

The Nats, who have done tolerably well against the first division clubs, have dropped 10 of 16 decisions to the A's this year.

Griffith Stadium officials, with a late-season splurge to capture the affections of women fans, after staging no ladies' day games for the first four months of the season, have designated tonight's contest as a special ladies' night affair.

Irv Noren, on his way to capturing virtually all the batting honors among the Nats, has now boosted his average to .315, his peak for the last half of the season, and is aiming at the goal of 100 runs batted in. Noren now has 83 to his credit. The last Washington player to bat in more than 100 was Cecil Travis in 1941.

Cooper Beats Titone in 5th Meeting

By Herb Heft
Post Reporter

Jimmy Cooper slambanged his way to a unanimous 12-round decision over Brooklyn's Charlie Titone last night in the fifth bout of their series at Griffith Stadium.

Cooper has outpointed Titone twice, Charlie won a knockout, and they drew twice.

A crowd of 2721 saw Cooper win 10 of the 12 rounds, but all of them by the slenderest of margins. Gross take was $5386, or $2500 less than their last meeting. Net was $4371.45.

Cooper, Washington's featherweight champ, was slow warming up in the chilly air, and Titone's stinging lefts won him the first round.

Cooper came back with some smart lefts of his own, and staggered Titone in the fifth, sixth and seventh rounds, but the Brooklyn boy was a glutton for punishment.

Titone Escapes

In the eighth when Cooper pinned him against the ropes and slammed him with three lefts, which seemed hard enough for a knockout, Titone leaned back, bobbed, and retaliated with three rights to the head to get out of the hole.

In the tenth, Titone made his best showing since the first when he staggered Cooper with a left and right to the jaw. But Cooper countered nicely, and had Titone on the run from then on. Cooper weighed 126½ and Titone, 122.

Dynamite Heavier

Smith stalked the muscular Dynamite through the third, and found his opening in the fourth. He shot in eight straight lefts. Referee Charlie Reynolds stopped it.

Dynamite at 128½, outweighed Smith by 6 pounds. It was Smith's eighth kayo in 12 pro fights. In a previous meeting, Smith outpointed Dynamite.

Yanks Buy .340 Hitter John Hopp From Pirates

NEW YORK, Sept. 5.—(AP)—The New York Yankees, seeking added reserve strength for the American League pennant drive, today obtained Johnny Hopp, veteran first baseman and outfielder, from the Pittsburgh Pirates.

John Hopp

Hopp was purchased for "a player or players to be named later" after waivers had been secured from all National League clubs. He will report to the Yankees immediately.

Hopp, playing his twelfth National League season, has a .340 batting average this year. He is a left-handed hitter, and is regarded as one of the fastest base runners in baseball. Hopp probably will be used mainly at first base, where Johnny Mize and Joe Collins have been alternating since Tommy Henrich has been unable to play, but he also can fill in as an outfield replacement.

Hopp played seven seasons for the St. Louis Cardinals, from 1939 to 1945, and appeared in three World Series and two all-star games as Cardinal. He was sold to Boston in 1946 and remained there two seasons before going to Pittsburgh.

Last season Hopp figured in a controversial Pirate-Brooklyn trade, going to the Dodgers in exchange for Marvin Rackley. The trade was called off and the players returned to their original clubs after a few weeks when it was learned that Rackley had a sore arm.

Army Engineers Plan to Fill in 2 of 4 East Potomac Courses

By Dave Heller
Post Reporter

There's sad news this morning for Washington's thousands of public links golfers.

Already-crowded publinxers face the prospect of losing the B and D courses of East Potomac, the area's largest public course, for a period estimated at from one to five years.

Mark S. Gurnee of the office of the Chief of the Army Corps of Engineers, disclosed yesterday that Army Engineers plan to deposit 400,500 cubic yards of dredged sand and gravel from the Washington channel on the golf courses. It would leave only the two smaller courses, A and C.

Mr. Gurnee said that the material deposited would raise the level of the courses several feet. Operations depositing the material will begin after the close of the current golf season, probably about November 15, he said.

Gurnee reported that the material is being placed on the courses at the request of the National Park Service to build up the land on Hains Point.

Gurnee said that the golf courses would "in all probability" not be playable for "at least a year," until the deposited material settles.

"We're putting the material on the golf courses as a favor to the park people," Gurnee said. "Our original plans called for the material dredged up to be disposed of by private contractors, but at their request we have agreed to put it on the golf courses."

Our Women Golfers Romp Over British for Curtis Cup

BUFFALO, N. Y., Sept. 5 (AP).—America won its fifth Curtis Cup trophy over the British Isles today, romping to a 7½ to 1½ victory in the 18-year-old women's international team golf matches.

It was a simple story—the lashing hands of the Americans carried them to the greens in regulation fashion as the British were short with their accurate but stiff-wristed swings.

The invaders staged a valiant, late afternoon rally, but it was on heart alone. The American lead in all but one of the day's singles matches was too great to overcome.

Curtis Cup Results

BUFFALO, N. Y., Sept. 5.—Today's results in the Curtis Cup matches between the United States and Great Britain.

Polly Riley, Fort Worth, Tex., defeated Mrs. George Valentine, Scotland, 7 and 6.

Beverly Hanson, Fargo, N. Dak., defeated Jean Donald, Scotland, 6 and 5.

Peggy Kirk, Findlay, Ohio, defeated Jean Bisgood, Great Britain, 1 up in 36 holes.

Grace Lenczyk, Newington, Conn., defeated Elizabeth Price, Great Britain, 3 and 4.

Mrs. Mark Porter, Westmont, N. J., and Frances Stephens, Great Britain, tied, each scoring ½ point.

Dorothy Kielty, Los Angeles, Calif., defeated Philomena Garvey, Ireland, 3 and 1.

Only Frances "Bunty" Stephens, last year's British women's champion, was able to salvage anything from the disaster. She came from behind with two beautiful putts on the 35th and 36th holes to draw with Mrs. Mark A. Porter of Westmont, N. J., the current U. S. titlist.

The slim English girl's effort gave her team half a point to add to the one taken in yesterday's three foursome matches.

In other matches, Dorothy Kielty of Los Angeles led Philomena Garvey, the champion of Eire from Dublin, 6 and 5, but was able to escape only with a 3 and 1 victory; Peggy Kirk of Findlay, Ohio, went to the thirty-sixth green before she beat Jeanne Bisgood of Franham, England, 1-up, and Grace Lenczyk rallied from a so-so morning round to rout Elizabeth Price of Bournemouth, England, 5 and 4.

Redskins' Threat on Ground and in Air—

Baugh, Gilmer Learn Halfbacks, Fullbacks Can Carry Ball and Running Game Pays Off

By Morris Siegel
Post Reporter

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Sept. 5.—This season the Washington Redskins expect to run with the ball more than they have in the last five years because:

1. At long last they have backs who can run, which is not the the least important item in a running attack.

2. They have a better defense, which is more important as far as Coach Herman Ball is concerned.

"The opposition usually dictated the type of game we would play last year," Ball observed. "We were in the hole so often, trailing anywhere from one to three touchdowns most of the time, that we couldn't afford to spend five minutes trying to run with the ball.

"And even the few times we tried it, we couldn't run because we didn't have anybody who could run. We had no alternative, so we had to pass about 85 per cent of the time."

This year, Ball continued, things are different, or at least they have been up to this time which finds the Redskins unbeaten in four exhibition games and anxious to make it five straight against the New York Yanks here Thursday night.

This new-found Redskins running game will not replace the passing of Sammy Baugh and Harry Gilmer as the Redskins' primary method of attack, Ball added. Instead, it will complement it and make their passing game that much better.

"It's much easier to throw a pass for a touchdown than running with the ball," Ball continued, "but if the opposition knows that's all you're going to do, as we did last year, you're dead ducks. We couldn't overcome two or three touchdown deficits by running. We had to pass."

East Potomac Courses May Be Filled in

Co., operators of the public golf courses, declined to comment for publication on the filling in of the courses, but privately expressed resentment at the proposed plan.

Ruben Hines, greenskeeper at East Potomac, estimated the length of time the courses would be unplayable at "at least three and probably five years."

"It will take at least a year for that sand and silt to settle," he said," and at least two more to build a course. It takes at least two years to build a course on solid ground. Look how long it took to build Woodmont. With that stuff underneath the course, it would take more like five years."

"I have been a greenskeeper for 26 years and helped build Manor, Georgetown Prep and Congressional," he said. "You can't build a golf course in a hurry. Building the tees and greens, seeding, the fairways and getting proper drainage takes time."

"Public links golfers are too crowded now," Hines said. "I don't think any golf courses should be destroyed before more are built."

REDSKINS—from pg. 17

'Skins Develop Running Game To Go With Their Air Attack

Bob Goode, Pete Stout and Rookie George Thomas, Ball feels he has five backs who can run, inside and outside.

"That's something we didn't have last year, the year before and haven't had since Dick Todd quit five years ago. Dowda, Goode and Stout were with us last year, but were rookies. They were being knocked down because they didn't know just when to cut back, when to turn on their speed and many other finer points which a year's experience has taught them.

"Dudley? He's a beaut. He gets two or three yards more than the average back because he knows how to fall, how to double up and bull his way when he's surrounded by tacklers and when to cut out or in or back."

The Redskin quarterbacks were in a helluva pickle last year for runners, Ball carried on. "Time after time they'd see runners sprung into the open only to be nailed from the side or behind because they didn't have the little know-hows the more experienced backs had. So our quarterbacks just quit calling runnng plays.

This year it's different, Ball maintains. Baugh and Gilmer have come to learn——" and I must admit it's been pretty tough for them to do so, what with the lousy success they had with our so-called running backs last year"—that their halfbacks and fullbacks can be trusted with the ball.

"They may fumble, but not as often. And give 'em a bit of daylight, and they're gone. We don't have to pass when we have third down and four yards to go for a first down. We can run with it too."

Ball feels that a strengthened Redskins' running attack, a strengthened Redskins' defense plus the "tools to run with," are like a fighter with a good punch in either hand.

"You're looking for him to slug you with that righthand, which is his Sunday punch, and he tags you with a left-hook, which isn't quite as damaging, but which sets you up for the right hand.

"That's what we're trying to do. The Los Angeles Rams played a four-man line with five line-backers up against us. Obviously, they expected nothing but a passing game from us. So we ran 'em dizzy."

"On the other hand, the Detroit Lions, who had scouted us, expected a running game from us down in Dallas. They played a six-man line with only three line-backers. So Gilmer passed over them.

"Football to me is pretty much like driving a car. You learn how to stop it before you learn how to start it."

"So far we've learned how to put the brakes on the opposition. They haven't run over us yet and we've been able to drive on the side of the road we want to, not on the side they'd like us to drive on."

Bluefishing in Chesapeake Best in 15 Years of Sport

By Ralph Murdock

NEVER IN 15 YEARS has bluefishing in upper Chesapeake Bay been better. The fighting blue devils are scattered from Point Lookout, at the mouth of the Potomac River, up to Annapolis. However, the better catches are being made off Solomon's Island between Old Cedar Point Lighthouse and Cove Point and in the Sharp's Light area on the Eastern side of the bay.

Murdock

Since the recent arrival of some 2½-pounders the sport is even more enticing. When feeding, the blues seldom surface in large numbers and usually disappear on the arrival of the fishing boats.

At this stage we suggest the use of two to eight ounce trolling sinkers, depending on the depth of the water. The seagulls invariably will divulge the spot where the schools of blues are located.

Our Sunday's fishing trip involved Tony Wakeman, WTTG sports commentator, Herb Goodman, Bob Nungesser, Walter Haight and your correspondent.

We made the trip across the bay in Nungesser's 26-foot runabout cruiser. In 45 minutes, 8:30 a. m. to be exact, we were on the fishing grounds. A few ambitious seagulls just south of Sharp's Island convinced us the fish were nearby. A couple of circles at this spot produced two pansize stripers. A lull followed.

TROLLING SOUTHERLY, we spotted another batch of gulls which were feeding on silver sides. The minnows were being pursued to the surface by a school of blues. Wakeman, using a spreader with two No. 1 Nungesser lures got the first hit and hauled in a nice pair of two-pound blues—a double.

In a jiffy 15 more fishing boats arrived and swung into action. The bluefish did the one thing that comes "natcherly"—they sounded. By switching to four-ounce trolling sinkers we kept on hooking 'em and ended up with a total catch of two rockfish and 37 nice blues. It was Goodman's birthday—we were back in dock at 3 p. m.

Alexander Beats Laffoon By 4 Strokes

ALBANY, N. Y., Sept. 5 (AP).—Bepsectacled Skip Alexander shot a one-under par 70 today to defeat Ky Laffoon in an 18-hole playoff for the $2600 first prize of the $15,000 Empire State Open golf tournament.

Laffoon, of St. Andrews, Ill., took the $1900 second prize with a three-over par 74.

The pair was tied at nine holes. Alexander, of Knoxville, Tenn., covered the first nine in 34, and the last in an even-par 36. Laffoon went out in 34 and back in 40.

They had ended in a deadlock at 279 yesterday, after 72 holes of medal play.

In the first half of yesterday's 36 holes, Alexander fired a record-shattering 66 over the 6665-yard course. He wound up with a one-under-par 70.

Flam Loses To Art Larsen

in to take the next four straight from the flustered Flam, and the rewarding roars from the crowd were all he needed. He ran himself half to death, never gave up on any point, made any number of "impossible" returns. In the end, Flam caved under such intense pressure.

The final point came on one of the many perfect lobs that Larsen patted over his net-rushing rival during the match. It hit the line and kicked up a cloud of lime as Herbie watched miserably

Ken McGregor of Australia and Mrs. Dupont won the mixed doubles title, defeating Frank Sedgman of Australia and Miss Hart, 6—4, 2—6, 6—3.

Epworth Wins Title

Epworth Methodist won the Church Fellowship softball league championship yesterday, defeating Mt. Vernon Place Methodist, 4-3, on the Monument Grounds.

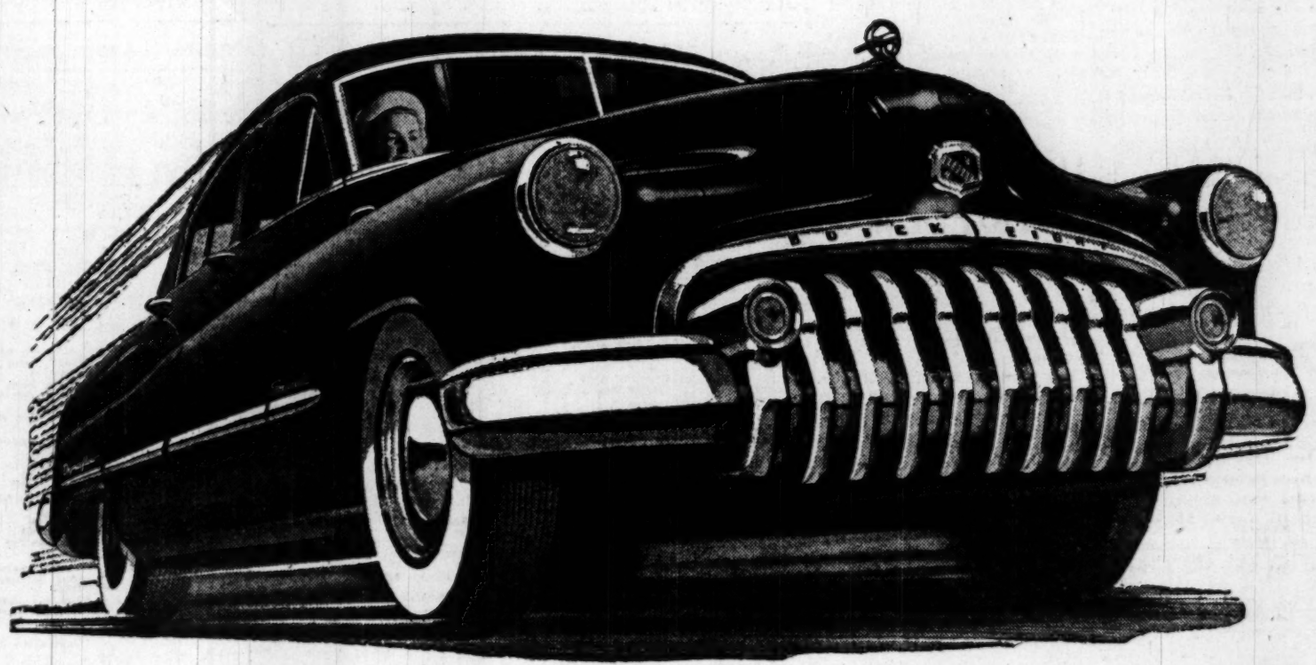
Thinking of the Long Pull?



Better Buy Buick!

If that car of yours has put its best days behind it, there's no time like right now to think about starting out afresh with a taut, new, up-to-the-minute motorcar with all its mileage still in it.

And there's no better place in the world to start than with the beauty pictured here, for a variety of reasons.

For one thing, this Buick SPECIAL is a quick-stepping Fireball valve-in-head straight-eight that's priced lower than some sixes.

For another, it's built with typical Buick ruggedness through and through—a husky that can take a lot of years without crying "Uncle!"

Then, too—this high-styled beauty is proving to be one of the most economical Buicks ever built—easy on gas, easy on upkeep, easy on you in its soft, floating, light-handling comfort.

It even comes with Dynaflow Drive* if you like—and Dynaflow means that you will never have to service or replace a friction clutch, and that rear-end or transmission servicing—even engine upkeep—are cut to a minimum.

Of course, you can't see all of this in the brief span of a trial drive.

But you can experience the good solid feel of Buick strength beneath you. You can satisfy yourself on the lightness of the controls, the utter smoothness of Dynaflow, the quick surge of Buick's Fireball power.

All such things will tell you that this is a car you'll be glad to live with for a long time to come—and you need only to ask your Buick dealer for a demonstration to see precisely what we mean.

Why not call on him soon to talk about signing up?

Only BUICK has Dynaflow and with it goes: HIGHER-COMPRESSION Fireball valve-in-head power in three engines. (New F-263 engine in SUPER models.) • NEW-PATTERN STYLING, with MULTI-GUARD forefront, taper-through fenders • TRAFFIC-HANDY SIZE, less over-all length for easier parking and garaging, short turning radius • EXTRA-WIDE SEATS cradled between the axles • SOFT BUICK RIDE, from all-coil springing, Safety-Ride rims, low-pressure tires, ride-steadying torque-tube.

*Standard on ROADMASTER, optional at extra cost on SUPER and SPECIAL models.

Bass Hurts Shoulder as Mount Hits Timonium Fence

AT TIMONIUM

Dear Folks:

Apprentice Doyle Gardener, whom I predicted would be a saddle star in the future, didn't last long here. Officials set him down for rough riding which means, despite the disciplinary action, he was trying to win. However, jockeys have to be more careful on the half-milers than on the major tracks and officials can't overlook performances that endanger the lives of horses and riders. Gardener will have to wait for Marlboro's opening September 13 to resume his career. Billy Bass's injury on the Tuesday program was a tough break. The boy was riding in excellent style and now faces a long layoff.—Bill.

Jump Saves Arduini in Another Race

TIMONIUM, Md., Sept. 5.—Jockey Billy Bass, 24-year-old rider from Cincinnati, suffered a bad fracture of the right shoulder, an injured left arm and possible internal injuries when he fell from Prince Tread, the 6-5 favorite in the first race today. Bass was taken to Bon Secours Hospital.

In the fourth race Jockey Ray Arduni, Washington boy, escaped with a shaking up after jumping off Humorist when he apparently thought the gelding was going into the outside fence on the lower turn.

Humorist, which broke loose, unseated Arduni and galloped off a half mile prior to the start, was allowed to start and came out of his position in good order.

Starts to Race Wide

Going into the lower turn in the five furlongs event, Humorist started to race wide and went closer and closer to the rail. Halfway around the turn, Arduni seemed to be unable to get Humorist away from the fence and threw himself to the ground.

Prince Tread, while attempting to gain the early lead, was on the outside of four horses as the leaders went into the sharp turn. Apparently unable to negotiate the bend, the horse crashed into the outside fence tearing off two rails.

The winner of the five furlongs dash was H. F. Atwell's Matoaka, which led throughout under William Clark to register by two and a half length over Goldie's Fun and returned $84.00. Flash Up was third.

S. L. Ulrich's Apra, ridden by Mike Sorrentino and trained by Mrs. G. A. (Babe) Saportas, Jr., took the lead on the final turn of the six and a half furlongs second race to score by a length and a half over Agency. Silver Kite, the pacemaker lasted to be third over Larkaround. The favored Goodrob finished seventh without an excuse. Apra's straight pay off was $12.20.

Ailing Citation Sent to Farm

NEW YORK, Sept. 4 (U.P.)—Citation, the world's leading money-winning thoroughbred, has been retired for the rest of the year, Trainer Jimmy Jones announced tonight.

The great Calumet Farm thoroughbred was shipped from Washington Park, Chicago, this morning to Lexington, Ky., where he will remain "for the fall and possibly the winter," Jones said.

"This is not a permanent retirement," Jones said of his star handicap horse. "We hope to bring him back to the races next year."

The Federal Diary
by Jerry Kluttz

Senate's Action Kills Tax Relief for Retired Government Employes

The Senate has voted against tax relief for the more than 100,000 retired Federal employes.

Its action kills the move to have all or a part of Civil Service annuities exempt from Federal income taxation by this session of Congress.

Senator Ives (R., N. Y.) offered an amendment to the tax bill to exempt the first $1800 in Federal, State, and municipal pensions from Federal income taxes.

In urging its approval, the New Yorker explained that the first $1800 in Social Security pensions would be exempt under the new law; that Railroad Retirement pensions and pensions paid to military officers retired for medical reasons also were exempt from Federal taxes. He argued for the amendment to correct "an inequitable situation."

Senator George (D., Ga.) led the successful fight against the rider. He said he couldn't see the justice in exempting a Government pensioner who is drawing from $1500 to $2000 from Federal income taxes unless the same benefit is extended to the ordinary citizen.

SPEEDUP: The Defense Department first estimated it would take at least 18 months to hire more than 250,000 additional civilians for the Army, Navy and Air Force. It has now ordered a general speedup of recruiting, and it hopes to have all the new workers on the job in less than a year.

Recruiting for the war agencies will be a continuing problem because of employe turnover. Turnover is reported to have shot up from 1 to 2 percent a month in recent weeks in some defense activities.

The Army yesterday, for example, sent out a hurried call to hire from 300 to 400 Grade 2 and 3 clerk-typists and Grade 2, 3, and 4 clerk-stenographers for its office here. Those interested in the temporary jobs should apply from 9 to 12 daily in Room 1A-724 of the Pentagon. Interviewers will be on hand in that room.

NOTES: Howard Chase of General Foods, is setting up a publicity office for Commerce's defense activities . . . Mary P. Walsh and Ruth H. Brandon have retired from Agriculture's Office of Budget and Finance . . . About 3800, or 58 percent, of the Bureau of Engraving and Printing personnel are buying saving bonds through the payroll savings plan, an increase of 1500 participants in the past month . . . CIO's Government Workers Union has written to members of Congress urging full collective bargaining rights for Federal workers. The bill by Representative Rhodes (D., Pa.) that would open the door to collective bargaining in Government is dead for this session of Congress.

JOBS: The Army's Military District of Washington is stepping up its hiring for Army stations here and nearby. It has exams open for these helper jobs that pay $1.11 an hour to start: bricklayer, electrician, heat and refrigeration mechanic, painter, plumber, sheetmetal worker, and steamfitter; these junior jobs that pay from $1.18 to $1.29 an hour: plasterer, electrician, sheetmetal worker, and heat and refrigeration mechanic, and the following jobs that pay from $1.36 an hour up: carpenter, electrician, locksmith, painter, plumber, sheetmetal worker, steamfitter and plasterer. Also, janitor, $2120 to $2252 a year, and laborer, .85 to $1.04 an hour. Apply in Room 2E-1030 of the Pentagon.

NOTES: Ralph Pratt, a Capitol Hill employe since 1904, is retiring. He has been secretary to Representative Ford (R., Mich.) for the past several years. . . . The cheerful and efficient Capitol Hill phone operators were praised on the House floor by Representatives Rogers (R., Mass.) and Gavin (R., Pa.). . . . Wilbur G. Birch, a statistician in the Army's Signal Corps, has retired after 33 years of service. . . . Representative Lanham (D., Ga.), accuses the Defense Department of firing 100 civilians at the Marietta Air Force Base, and then turning around and hiring a private firm to do the same work, at a higher cost to the Government. . . . The AFL's National Association of Postal Supervisors will meet in convention here next week at the Statler. A record attendance of 1200 is expected. . . . Walter Rhinehart, ECA's assistant personnel director, is leaving this week for active Navy duty. He's a reserve commander.

Girl, 5, Dies 50 Minutes After Being Hit by Car

Ran Between Parked Autos, Police Say; Gen. Maguire's Son Fatally Injured

District Traffic Toll:
1950 deaths to date 44
1949 deaths to date 40
Total 1949 death toll 67

Five-year-old Bessie Minor of 1722 Seaton st. nw., was injured fatally early last night when she was struck by a car a half block from her home.

Police said the child ran from behind parked cars at Florida ave. and Seaton st. nw. Driver of the car was Dr. Lawrence W. Greene, 45, of 1237 Irving st. nw.

Dr. Greene said he did not see the child until his auto was upon her. He ministered to her after the accident, police said.

The child died in Children's Hospital at 6:20 p. m., about 50 minutes after she was struck.

Dr. Greene was released on his own recognizance last night pending action by the coroner.

General's Son Dies

Hamilton Ewing Maguire, jr., 18, of 3519 Rodman st. nw., died early Monday in a Winchester, Va., hospital. The boy, son of Brig. Gen. and Mrs. Hamilton Ewing Maguire, sr. (ret.), was fatally injured about 1 a. m. when his car left Route 626, about four miles north of Middleburg, Va., State police said.

The youth, a graduate of Hill School, Pottstown, Pa., was to have entered Princeton University.

Surviving are his parents; a brother, Edward F. D. Maguire; three sisters, Mrs. John G. Keller, Mrs. Marcus Beebe, jr., and Miss Mary Maguire, and his grandmother, Mrs. Edward H. Droop of Washington.

Funeral services will be at 3 p. m. today at the Berryville (Va.) Episcopal Church.

Deaths Accidental

Fairfax County officials yesterday ruled accidental the deaths Monday of Mr. and Mrs. Gordon C. Cox, of 4012 Q st. se.

In an unusual accident, Mr. and Mrs. Cox were crushed to death by an auto driven by a friend, Charles Fentress, 29, of 4015 Q st. se., near Vienna, Va.

The Coxes and Fentress were attending a birthday party for Fentress' two nieces on a farm owned by Fentress' brother, J. Leo Fentress.

Fairfax County police said the couple apparently sat down to rest in a field of tall grass. They were run over by Fentress' auto shortly after he had left them near a small stream, telling them he would return to pick them up.

Commissioners Plan Rules for Vending Units

Regulations for all vending machines in District-owned or occupied buildings are to be drafted within the next 30 days by a committee named yesterday by the District Commissioners.

The committee is composed of the Superintendent of District Building as chairman, the District Fire Marshal, a Health Department representative and the District Auditor.

Drafting of the regulations would have a three-fold objective: increased safety; cleanliness and sanitation, and a better utilities arrangement. At the present time, the District receives a nominal sum for use of water and current in only two instances.

There are now 235 vending machines in operation in District buildings. Of these, 26.8 percent pay off to concessionaires; 19.5 percent to the Washington Society for the Blind; 12.3 percent to students; 10.2 percent to employes; 10.2 percent to private sponsors; 4.8 percent to institutional inmates, and .9 percent to charity.

Largest group of the machines are in the soft-drink class.

The committee named yesterday is to give its proposed regulations to the District Commissioners within 30 days. It is empowered to draft regulations for the issue of permits for installation and regulations warning department heads concerning violations of regulations, and requiring immediate compliance under penalty of permit suspension.

Woman Who Communes With Animals at Home Persuades Mother Squirrel to Rescue Young'un From Under Radiator

Mrs. Daniel Knowlton Spends Labor Day Saving Baby Animal

By Bill Brinkley
Post Reporter

This is a story about a baby squirrel who came down the chimney and got lost in the radiator.

And about a lady who gave up her Labor Day holiday trying to get it out.

And how the lady finally had to call Mama Squirrel into the house to do the rescue job personally.

"I hesitated about calling the newspapers about this," said Mrs. Daniel Knowlton, "For fear people would say it was incredible. But it happened."

Mrs. Knowlton, a sister of the late Charles Dana Gibson of "Gibson Girl" fame, lives in a "country spot within the city" at 1829 Phelps pl. nw. Many animals dwell in her yard of forest and grass and she knows most of them by their first names.

The Mama squirrel involved in this story, as a matter of fact, was born on the Knowlton place and Mrs. Knowlton helped raise her.

Now it came about that the baby squirrel came down the chimney of the second-floor bedroom at 9 a. m. Labor Day and lost itself in the radiator pipes.

Repeatedly Mrs. Knowlton tried to get it out. She could not. "I just couldn't get my hand back in there, for the pipes are small."

Labor Day is supposedly a day of rest or holidaying. Besides which, Mrs Knowlton was supposed to pick up her husband at the Chevy Chase Country Club, where he had gone for tennis.

"But I just couldn't go out and leave the baby squirrel in the radiator," she said. "It was so young it was still nursing. I had seen the mother feeding it in the yard."

Mrs. Knowlton spent hours disarranging the bedroom—taking the mattress off the chaise longue, the covers off the bed, and the like—so that if the squirrel should emerge from the radiator it would not get lost elsewhere.

Every hour or so she made an effort to get it out of the radiator. No success.

Finally, at about 3 p. m., an extraordinary, yet obvious, idea occurred to Mrs. Knowlton: Why not tell the baby's mother about it?

"The mother had never been in the house—on the second floor, that is—so I wasn't sure if she would come. I know this sounds sort of silly but I went out and found her and told her, 'I have your baby.'"

We fail to find it silly at all. After all, Mrs. Knowlton had once saved the mother's life with an eye-dropper of milk, and so they spoke a common language.

"She came up the vines of the house. The windows were screened and I directed her to the balcony. She acted like she was definitely on a mission. She got on the balcony and I let her in the French doors.

"I directed her to the radiator and she went there and started looking around between the pipes. Finally she found her baby.

"She picked the baby up, the baby wrapped its arms around its mother's neck and the mother carried it back down the side of the house."

When he discovered the reason, Mr. Knowlton was not unhappy at all about not being picked up at the club. He regretted only one thing: "I certainly wish I could have seen it."

$3700 Taken In 2 Thefts

Over $3700 was taken from two safes here during the long Labor Day weekend, police reported yesterday.

Raymond D. Baribeau, manager of the National Car Rental System, 1709 L st. nw., told police yesterday that about midnight on Labor Day, $2359.93 was taken from a safe in the first floor office of the L st. address.

"Expert" safecrackers punched open the office safe at the Eastman Kodak Co. store, 607 14th st. nw., during the weekend and made off with $1416 in cash, police reported yesterday.

Yeggs entered the building via a roof skylight, police found, located the safe in a second floor office, knocked off its dial, and then punched the door mechanism to open it. They escaped from the building by prying open a first floor rear door.

Store Manager Byron A. Hewins said the money represented Saturday's receipts and office cash. He said the store closed at 5:30 p. m. Saturday and the forced safe was not discovered until 6 a. m. yesterday when two porters entered the building to clean up.

Pilfering, Hiding Guinea Pig Not Disorderly, Court Rules

When a woman scales a zoo fence and shoves a guinea pig down the front of her dress, it is something other than disorderly conduct in the eyes of the law, Judge Armond W. Scott ruled yesterday.

The decision freed Miss Virginia Richardson, 35, of 207 C st. nw., charged with the misdemeanor in Municipal Court.

According to Zoological Park Policeman Arthur Austin, visitors reported Monday afternoon that Miss Richardson had vaulted the guinea-pig area fence and secreted one of the half-grown animals in her bosom.

Austin said that when he asked Miss Richardson about it she first denied it all. But after he told her that something was wriggling, she admitted it, he said.

In court, Judge Scott said he couldn't see how Miss Richardson could be guilty of the charge.

"Her climbing the fence didn't disturb the mental tranquility of those looking on," said the Judge. "The children around probably enjoyed it. You should have charged her with something else."

"We could have," replied Assistant Corporation Counsel C. Belden White, sadly.

After the charge was dismissed, a reporter asked Miss Richardson why she wanted to get in among the guinea pigs.

"I like animals. I like to touch them," she replied.

Episcopal Section Backs Bishop Dun

'Liberal' Wing Supports Bid to Members Of Other Sects

By Tom Schlesinger
Post Reporter

The so-called liberal wing of the Episcopal Church yesterday defended the Right Rev. Angus Dun, Episcopal Bishop of Washington, under fire for inviting non-Episcopalians to a communion service.

Bishop Dun was censured last Spring by the American Church Union, representing the most conservative elements of the church, for "flagrant disregard" of church doctrine.

In a statement released by the Rev. Charles S. Kean, president of the fellowship, the group defended not only Bishop Dun's action but also one of similar nature by the Right Rev. Charles F. Hall, Episcopal Bishop of New Hampshire.

"The Protestant Episcopal Church believes that it exists to make its treasures available to all Christian people who share in the faith of the New Testament," the statement from national headquarters in St. Louis said.

"The attacks . . . are attempts of a minority group within the Protestant Episcopal Church to change the traditions of our Communion and to transform us into a 'closed Communion' sect . . ." the statement charged.

"The whole religious world must be shown that what the bishops stood for, and not what the attacks made upon them represented, truly manifests the spirit of the Protestant Eliscopal Church."

Sixty-three leading Episcopalians, including nine bishops, two seminary deans and six seminary professors signed the statement.

The nine Bishops were: Lane W. Barton of Eastern, Oreg.; Robert F. Gibson, jr., suffragan of Virginia; Henry Wise Hobson, Cincinnati, Ohio; Norman B. Nash, Boston; Edward L. Parsons, retired of San Francisco; William Scarlett, St. Louis; Dudley S. Stark, Rochester, N. Y.; Beverley D. Tucker, Cleveland, and John Moore Walker, Atlanta.

Among the signers from the Washington area were: the Rev. E. Felix Kloman, rector of St. Albans Church; the Rev. Leland Starke, rector of the Church of the Epiphany and president of the local Episcopal Evangelican Fellowship; the Very Rev. Alexander Zabriskie, retired dean of the Virginia Theological Seminary, Alexandria; and two professors from the seminary, the Rev. Clifford L. Stanley and the Rev. Robert O. Kevin.

Bishop Dun was attacked because he invited two ministers of other communions to read the appointed Scripture passages at a service of the Holy Communion at Washington Cathedral, Ash Wednesday, and for inviting member ministers of the Washington Council of Churches to receive the Holy Communion.

Woman, 57, Takes Life in Bathtub In Takoma Park

Mrs. Gertrude O. Zumbrum, 57, of 523 Maple ave., Takoma Park, committed suicide yesterday in the bathroom of her home, Takoma Park Police Chief C. E. Thomas said.

She was fully clothed and lying on her side in a bathtub filled with water, Thomas reported. A rope, tied around her neck apparently had been fixed to the shower curtain rack but had worked loose. A bottle of disinfectant was found in the room, and police said there were indications Mrs. Zumbrum had taken about one-fourth of its contents.

Dr. Emil G. Bauersfeld, acting Montgomery County coroner, issued a certificate of suicide by asphyxia. He said he was not able to determine immediately whether death was caused by drowning or whether she had been choked by the rope.

In Montgomery

Women Cops Skirt Opinion, Order Slacks

In solemn sort of conclave, 14 women — Montgomery County's newest police force—voted yesterday morning in favor of slacks as part of their official uniform.

They would have nothing to do with skirts.

Slacks and "battle jackets," they reported to the County are what they want to wear while patroling school crossings in the county.

This decision—by an 11-to-3 vote—surprised county officials. It reversed official opinion on the subject. It caused a bit of confusion.

But the women won.

Montgomery Police Chief Charles M. Orme had favored slacks in the first place.

Not County Manager Irving McNayr or the County Safety Board.

"Frankly," said McNayr, "I had talked with the men of the safety board. We were of the opinion—that is, we thought—the ladies would favor the skirts.

"This—hmm—opinion," he said, "was based largely on a number of men's ideas. But if they want slacks—well, as a matter of fact it's cheaper than the skirts."

The confusion stemmed from McNayr's original opinion and Chief Orme's position based on the skirt opinion.

Despite the slack-favoring vote, he said at first, the women would get skirts.

"We have decided not to," he said. "That's been changed. The vote was only a recommendation."

Later, having learned that McNayr had changed his mind, Orme said his first comment was wrong.

"I guess they can handle themselves better in them."

The 14 women met, and voted, in the Silver Spring Armory. There, along with 16 men, they were given training in school safety work.

The men were hired only until more women guards are obtained. Salary: $50 a month. The whole idea behind the policewoman program is to free regular county policemen from school traffic duty.

Of the 14 already hired—County Council approved their appointments yesterday—13 are for the Silver Spring area and will be attached to the Silver Spring police station. The fourteenth, Mrs. Donald Wade of Damascus, will work out of the Rockville station.

Worker Saved By 6 Others In 2 Cave-ins

A 48-year-old laborer—buried for more than a minute when a 26-foot-high bank caved in on him—yesterday escaped with only minor cuts and bruises.

Louis Fitzgerald of 3635 11th st. nw., and five other men were working in the basement excavation for an apartment building in the 3400 block of Holmead pl. nw.

According to E. F. Higdon, superintendent for the concrete contractor, all six men saw the high dirt bank begin to cave and turned to run. Five of them made it to safety.

Fitzgerald, however, tripped and fell. The cave-in covered him up to his neck. Seconds later, another cave-in buried him under a foot of dirt.

Higdon said six workmen, digging furiously with hands and shovels, first uncovered Fitzgerald's head and finally his whole body. Fitzgerald was taken to Emergency Hospital, treated for cuts and bruises, and released.

10 New Polio Cases Reported In D. C. Area

3, Including 2 Infants, Stricken in Washington; Prince Georges Lists 3

Ten new cases of poliomyelitis were reported in Greater Washington yesterday, bringing the area total so far this year to 226.

Three of yesterday's new cases were reported in Washington, making 101 so far this year as compared with 51 for the same time last year. In western Virginia, the summer-long polio epidemic has caused postponement of opening of public schools in seven counties.

The new Washington cases are a 15-year-old boy from the 1200 block of 6½ pl. nw., in Gallinger's Hospital; a 9-months-old boy from the 3000 block of Knox st. se. and a 12-month-old boy from the 1200 block of Linden st. ne., both hospitalized in Children's.

Three new cases reported for Prince Georges County, bringing the total this year to 43, are a 30-year-old woman from the 2900 block of 43d st., Suitland, admitted to Gallinger August 31; a 9-year-old boy from the unit block of Twin Oak dr., Chillum, and a 13-year-old girl from the 3300 block of Chillum Seat pl., Mount Rainier, both in Children's Hospital.

Montgomery County's three new cases, bringing the county total to 36, are a 7-year-old girl from the 8000 block of Custer rd., Bethesda, and a 4-year-old boy from the 9800 block of Rosenstell st., Silver Spring, both hospitalized in Children's and a 35-year-old man from the 10700 block of Old Bladensburg rd., Silver Spring, not hospitalized.

Virginia Polio Total Rises to 595 Cases

RICHMOND, Va., Sept. 5, (AP).—Virginia's 1950 polio toll rose to 595 today with the report to the State Health Department of 15 new cases for a three-day period beginning Sunday.

Two deaths were also added to the state list to boost the year's total to 37. Reports were received on a 24-year-old Arlington woman who died this week in New York City, and on a 7-year-old Grayson County girl who died in a Roanoke Hospital.

Six southwest Virginia counties have postponed the opening of schools because of high polio incidence.

Wythe County, hardest hit polio area in the nation, has put off opening its schools until September 21. Schools have been postponed until September 11 in Pulaski and Giles, September 12 in Craig, September 15 in Smythe and September 18 in Grayson.

Civitans Hear School Plans

A school program that is preparing "our future citizens better than those of a generation ago" was outlined to the Civitan Club yesterday by Mrs. Edward C. Magdeburger, a member of the District Board of Education.

Mrs. Magdeburger, chairman of the board's committee on legislation, cited new methods of teaching, use of films and the special programs offered in the vocational schools and in classes for the mentally retarded and the physically handicapped.

The District now is providing education for nearly 100 deaf children at a cost of $800 a year for each child, she said.

Night schools are open to every adult, and the Americanization School is preparing the foreign-born to become citizens, training foreign visitors to speak English, and teaching language to illiterate Americans, she said.

30,000 Pupils Trek Back to County Schools

Half-Day Periods Needed Because Of Heavy Load On Classrooms

Almost 30,000 bright and shining students—nearly 10 percent more than last year—went back to school in Arlington and Fairfax counties yesterday.

An already difficult shortage of classrooms was made more acute. In Arlington, a total of 16,069 turned out—2445 more than the first day last year. The biggest boost was in the upper grades and resulted in emergency half-day sessions for two schools.

Last month, the school board anticipated this problem and put the Washington-Lee Senior High School student body of 2200 on morning sessions from 8 to 12 noon. Another 1000, who will eventually attend the Stratford Junior High School (expected to be ready November), will go to W-L from 12:30 to 4:30 p. m.

About 700 students at the Nellie Custis Elementary School will be on half-day sessions for a four-to-six-week period this fall. This applies to the first through sixth grades, until the new Oakridge Elementary School is completed.

Enrollment Figures

White—elementary, 9894; junior high, 3075; senior high, 2151. Total 15,120.

Negro—elementary, 664; junior high, 185; senior high, 100. Total 949.

In Fairfax County, about 14,000 students turned out for the half-day registration and assignment to classrooms—about a thousand more than the pupil load at the end of last school year.

Said Superintendent of Schools Wilbert T. Woodson, "All 36 schools will be overcrowded. Undoubtedly there will be half-day sessions in some primary grades, but we must await enrollment figures before we plan which."

The overcrowding occurred despite School Board arrangements for temporary classrooms in the Shirley-Duke and Belle View Apartmnets, 11 quonset huts at existing schools, renting of four rooms in the Herndon Volunteer Fire Department building, Woodson said.

Today school bells ring out for Alexandria's estimated 8000 pupils, but the city does not expect overcrowding, Superintendent of Schools T. C. Williams said. He predicted the average pupil load as an average of 25 to 29 per teacher, possible because of heavy building operations.

Falls Church pupils report Friday for classroom assignments.

The annual mass for teachers in Catholic schools in the Archdiocese of Washington will be held today at 10 a. m. at St. Matthews Cathedral with more than 1000 expected. Archbishop Patrick A. O'Boyle will celebrate the Mass, which marks the formal opening of the school year for more than 26,000 students in Washington and five counties of Southern Maryland. Classes will start in most of the schools Thursday.

In Prince Georges and Montgomery counties, pupils resume studies September 11. In the District, schools open the same morning.

Less Swimming

Attendance At Six Pools Off One Third

The Interior Department's six swimming pools had one-third fewer bathers in 1950, the first full year of non-segregated swimming, than in 1949.

Preliminary figures were made public yesterday by Edward Kelly, superintendent of Interior's National Capital Parks. The pools closed on Labor Day.

1947—418,000
1948—415,000
1949—330,000

Closed For Summer

The non-segregation policy, on the books for some time, first came to general attention last year. After a fracas at Anacostia pool in June, 1949, that pool was closed for the summer. Others continued on a non-segregated basis.

Kelly reported there was no incident of any kind reported this year at Anacostia, East Potomac, McKinley, Takoma, Francis and Banneker. He said the department was "very well pleased with the good order" and he termed the year "a fairly successful operation."

Kelly said he kept four Park Policemen at Anacostia and East Potomac throughout the season, three at Takoma and one each at the other pools. In years past, one policeman was stationed at each pool, he added.

Two-Thirds White

Kelly said preliminary figures show attendance at East Potomac about two-thirds white and one-third Negro; at Anacostia and McKinley about 90% Negro; at Takoma about 98% white and at Francis and Banneker about 99% Negro. Of the overall 220,000, he said, about 145,000 were white bathers and 75,000 Negroes.

Kelly said bad weather accounted for some of the decline in attendance.

Glen Echo pool reported a falling off of "about 5%" this year as compared with last, due to the wet weather. The District Recreation Department, which runs two segregated pools for whites, reported attendance was almost exactly the same as last year. Recreation said 1947 was the peak post-war year with 70,135 swimmers while this year's total was 61,500.

2 Men Charged With Possession Of Numbers Slips

Two men were charged with operating a lottery and possession of numbers slips yesterday after vice squad members said one of them spilled the slips as police sought to question them.

Arrested without a warrant and charged were Chappelle Sims, 20, of 806 21st st. ne. and Charles W. Howze, 38, of 2015 15th st. nw.

According to vice squad Lieut. Roy Blick, a squad cruiser spotted the men in a yellow convertible behind Freedmen's Hospital after receiving a tip the pair was picking up numbers bets.

The cruiser followed the convertible to the 100 block of Randolph st. nw. Then, Blick said, Howze got out of the car, dropped a paper bag he was carrying, and out fell some numbers slips. As Howze bent over to retrieve the bag, Blick said, more slips fell from his shirt pocket. Howze and Sims will be arraigned at 10 a. m. today in Municipal Court.

Fined for Drunk Driving

Frank Jeffries Ruffner, 31, of 124 W st. nw., was fined $100 by Arlington County Court Judge Hugh Reid yesterday on a charge of drunk driving. The judge suspended a 30-day jail sentence.

Fairfax Acts To Bar Beer Near School

Fairfax County's school board yesterday started efforts to block issuance of a beer license to a restaurant opposite Fairfax High School on Route 211.

The board unanimously adopted a resolution opposing a license for the Fairfax Drive-in Restaurant and authorized School Supt. Wilbert T. Woodson to attend a hearing before the Virginia Alcohol Beverage Control on Thursday.

The Richmond hearing is to be held on an appeal from Broughton and Muse, Inc., operator of the tavern. Woodson said the applicants tried unsuccessfully to obtain a license at a hearing before local area representatives of the liquor board about a month ago.

Woodson said his prineipal objection to the sale of beer at the tavern was that it would be patronized by persons attending night athletic contests and other after-dark activities at the high school.

At yesterday's meeting, the board received a delegation from the county's School Emergency Association, seeking information on the status of a $10,500,000 bond issue for school improvements. Approved by county voters last May, the bond issue has become the center of a legal battle over legality of the referendum in which it was approved.

Mrs. McDiarmid, secretary, said the association hopes to find a solution to problems confronting school officials through their inability to expend the bond funds. The delegation was told the school board will be unable to sell the bonds as long as litigation pends.

The group said the suit has retarded efforts to solve serious overcrowding.

Papageorge Resigns Montgomery Post

George T. Papageorge, director of public works for Montgomery County, resigned yesterday.

Papageorge was the central figure in a skirmish with County Manager Irving G. McNayr last April in which he submitted, and later withdrew his resignation.

The director said he has been named chief of the Urban Redevelopment Commission in Atlanta, Ga., his home, where he was administrative director of the Fulton County Planning Commission before his appointment to the Montgomery County post July 5, 1949.

The resignation stated he wants to leave September 30 to assume his new duties. In recommending acceptance of the resignation, County Manager McNayr told the County Council he took the step with regret because Papageorge had "been doing some pretty good work lately."

The council accepted the resignation "with regret."

Papageorge told reporters his decision to resign had nothing to do with his former difficulties with McNayr.

"This an advancement which offers more pay and advancement," Papageorge said. "Besides, it will be home."

Papageorge announced last May he would resign after he and McNayr had a disagreement, but later said the difficults had been resolved and he would continue in his $9500 post.

The Public Works Department supervises road construction, and maintenance, highway traffic engineering, a tree division and custodial service for all county buildings.

County Manager McNayr said he would recommend that Assistant Director Mason Butcher be named as acting director.

Prince Georges Names Board For Personnel

The Prince Georges County Commissioners yesterday established a personnel board to administer county government employe affairs.

The board was established in accordance with provisions of the Sothoron Act, which reorganizes the governmental structure. It was set up in the form proposed by Commissioner D. Leonard Dyer on July 25.

Some civic groups later offered recommendations modifying Dyer's resolution.

Formation of an impartial board which would not include county officials or employes was recommended by the League of Women Voters. The board as proposed—and as finally established—is composed of the president of the commissioners, the clerk and the county attorney, with the head of any agency sitting in on matters affecting an employe of that agency.

Powers said he could see no reason why such a board would not act impartially.

Action on Hyattsville Canteen Deferred Until September 18

The Hyattsville Town Council last night postponed action on the community's controversial Teen Canteen to wait for a report, due September 18, from the council's police committee.

Councilman Thomas Arnold, chairman of the committee, told the council his group had been unable to meet since the report was ordered by the council at its August 21 meeting. An open committee meeting was scheduled for 7:30 p. m. Thursday.

A group of 11 citizens has petitioned the council to close the canteen or remove it from the Olive Street School. The petitioners charged there was disorderly conduct around the canteen on Saturday nights.

The council approved a plan for rerouting Capital Transit buses to bring service to areas of northwest Hyattsville which have no service. It will also provide transportation to the new Nicholas Orem High School, now under construction on Colesville rd.

The plan must be approved by the Maryland Public Service Commission before it is put into effect.

Tom Taggart Dies; Ex-Atlantic City Mayor

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Sept. 5.—(AP)—Tom Taggart, jr., former mayor of Atlantic City and one of the most controversial figures in the resort's political history, was found dead in bed this morning.

A member of the family said the 47-year-old Taggart apparently was a victim of a heart attack.

Mr. Taggart, who bore the nickname "Two-Gun," was a Republican.

Elected mayor of Atlantic City in 1940, he gained national fame as a gun-carrying night raider of gambling establishments and bawdy houses. He carried one, then two pistols in his belt.

He took less than two years to break up what he called the "eastern headquarters for the horse-race gambling racket." At the height of his fame as a vice buster, in 1942, he announced that Atlantic City was a "closed town."

In 1948 he represented 34 taxpayers in a move to have the Atlantic City Commission investigated. A State Supreme Court justice ordered the investigation.

STROUP, MABEL L. On Tuesday

Anne Davis, Mr. Camalier Wed

By Elizabeth Maguire

THE WEATHER was crisp and clear for the wedding yesterday of Miss Elizabeth Anne Davis and Charles A. Camalier, jr., and the garden reception which followed at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Etheward Davis of Bethesda. Naval Communications Chapel on Nebraska ave. was the setting for the marriage ceremony at 5 o'clock, at which the Rev. Charles Gorman officiated.

Escorted by her father, the bride wore a gown of ivory satin and Italian lace, fashioned with lace panel down the front, very full skirt, and circular train. A silk illusion veil flowed from a Juliet cap of lace, and she wore her mother's pearls, given to Mrs. Davis by her husband when she was married. Her flowers were lilies of the valley and white orchids.

Mrs. Floyd E. Davis, jr., sister-in-law of the bride, was matron of honor, gowned in claret red satin and carrying lady pink chrysanthemums The bridesmaids, gowned in soft pink and carrying claret red chrysanthemums, were Miss Lucile Marie Camalier, sister of the bridegroom; Miss Elizabeth Beauchamp Halley, Miss Anne Almy Mearns, Miss Dorothy West Osborne, Miss Margaret Ann Gollan, and Mrs. George A. DeWitt, jr.

Miss Susan Walsh, niece of the bridegroom, and daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Raymond A. Walsh of Chevy Chase, was flower girl, costumed in angel tone satin with claret red sash and little poke bonnet of angel tone satin. Her flowers were a bouquet of tiny pink and claret red chrysanthemums.

Raymond A. Walsh, brother-in-law of the bridegroom, was best man. Ushering were Floyd E. Davis, jr.; Edward Beard, Bruce Quigley, H. Loy Anderson, Roy Ingoldsby, George A. De Witt, jr.; Warren Browning, and Harry Swagart, jr.

At the reception, a marquee was set up in the garden for dancing, and small tables dotted the lawn. Mrs. Davis, mother of the bride, wore a grey frock of imported Chantilly lace, and Mrs. Camalier, mother of the bridegroom, was in sapphire blue.

The bride and bridegroom left by motor for a honeymoon at the Broadmoor Hotel in Colorado Springs. On their return they will make their home in Bradley Hills, Md., where they have purchased a new house.

The bride was graduated from Holton Arms School and Junior College, and the bridegroom was graduated from Georgetown University and attended Georgetown Law School. During the war he served overseas as a lieutenant in the United States Navy.

Tobé Says...

Drop Shoulders Make New, Looking Shirts

Everyone who wears suits—and what American woman doesn't—must have a wardrobe of shirts. Yet I for one get a little tired of shirts too-tailored. So I like very much the new shirts with soft drop shoulders and pretty full sleeves. They look especially nice when you take off your jacket. Or if you wear one with a separate skirt, it is dressy enough to double for a little shirtwaist frock. The smartest fabric for these is lustrous tissue faille which comes in delicious colors. With jeweled buttons, it transforms a tailored shirt into something very feminine indeed.

Experiment Margaret

Skin Blemishes Result Of Too Many Sweets, Improper Cleansing

(Fourth day of Margaret's two weeks' beauty program.)

By Ann Lawrence

PLAGUE of the young girl's existence is that ugly red blemish that always pops out at the worst moment—just before some big weekend, or The Dance of The Year.

And Margaret has her share, although since her skin is normal-to-dry, she is not so subjected to these eruptions as the oily-complexioned girl.

What causes them? And what can be done about them?

Most blemishes are caused internally. Too many sweets, starches, or fried, fatty foods, too little rest, the menstrual period, or nervousness and strain can cause the skin to erupt in revolt at the life you are leading. External causes include, first and foremost, improper cleaning. Squeezing to remove a blackhead can lead to a pimple; any small break in the skin can become infected and turn into a nasty red bump.

AT THE first sign of a blemish, Margaret was warned to examine her diet, to cut down on sweets and fats; to add a green leafy vegetable; to be sure to drink at least eight full glasses of water a day. Sleep is another "must" and eight hours a night is a minimum maintainance standard.

The second step towards warding off blemishes is absolute cleanliness, the rules for which she has already learned: a minimum of three cleansings a day, all with soap and water. She'll banish her cleansing cream temporarily, for pimples are usually due to overactivity of the oil glands and there's no point in adding to the injury.

THERE'S also a new duo on the market, both medicated products, which should be included in every schoolgirl's beauty kit. One is a cream which can be used as a powder base to hide the eruption. It smooths on exactly like a foundation, and as it conceals, it helps to soothe and heal. The other is a medicated lotion, which can be applied to the spot at night, to do its work as you sleep.

Mary Haworth's Mail

An Interesting Coincidence, This: Man and Girl Write Separately, Same Day, Asking How to Win Heart of One They Love; They Love Each Other!

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: I am a college girl, 21, and in the last few years I have become personally acquainted with a former high school teacher of mine. Bill is seven years older than I, and I am afraid I have fallen in love with him. Unfortunately, the feeling isn't mutual.

Although he is only seven years older than I, he treats me as if I were still his pupil. He constantly gives me the impression that he is still educating me. I enjoy talking with him, I agree with his theories and think he is very intelligent; but I wish he would think of me as adult.

I am afraid to let him know that I care for him, because he is a cynic with a rather vitriolic sense of humor and I am afraid he would laugh at me. Last night we discussed columns like yours, which gave me the idea of writing to you. I would be very grateful if you can advise me how to induce Bill to treat me as an equal. V. C.

Would Specialist Cure Cynic Pose?

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: I am 28, a high school teacher, and I suffer acutely from shyness. I have fallen in love with a former student of mine, now a college co-ed. I have learned from mutual friends that this girl is fond of me; but also that she thinks of me only as her ex-teacher.

She likes my company, it seems, but only because she enjoys trading views on literature, politics, philosophy, etc., with me. Our friends tell me she considers me a great authority on these highly theoretical subjects. Naturally I am proud of that fact; but I would like her to think of me as her equal—not as her present or former teacher. Yet I am unable to do anything to change her concept of me.

When I am in her company I suffer an attack of bashfulness, take refuge in the pedagogical role and go into a discussion of abstract theories. I have thought of consulting a psychologist in hopes of curing my shyness. But I have built up a reputation amongst my friends of being a cynic, a complete nonbeliever; and thus I fear that if they should learn I was taking such measures, they would ridicule me as a hypocrite.

How can I prove to this girl that I am not just a school teacher? And what is your advice about a psychologist? Do you think I should risk it? Thanking you in advance for any help you may offer, I am sincerely yours, W. B.

Common Impulse Implies Rapport

DEAR CORRESPONDENTS: The foregoing letters were posted the same day, in the same great city, and I don't think it's a gag. I think you are writing in all seriousness—without premeditation or verbal agreement—about a heart interest mutually felt.

And I suggest that nothing could be more indicative of your psychological rapport than the fact that you are speaking in unison on a matter of mutual concern, and using almost identical language—without either knowing that the other is "taking the words out of his mouth."

Don't you think the letters answer each other? They clear up misconceptions, and portray "two minds with but a single thought, two hearts that beat as one——," to quote some poet whose name I forget. Everything is all right, it seems, if only you weren't so shy with each other. But that is a hallmark of true love, especially when it's also first love.

Bill's pose of cynic intellectuality and social self-sufficiency is a typical defensive front of many bachelors who've never felt securely loved, and who are scared of girls, due to lack of dating experience in adolescence. And it appears that some gabby mutual friend has been doing Cupid a deliberate disservice in this case, moreover, by persuading Bill that the co-ed esteems him only as a teacher. Who is this interference? A woman, probably, who wants to break up Bill and the rapt co-ed, before either suspect the other's in love; and maybe her big idea is to catch Bill and graft him on to her own family tree. Well, children, here's wishing you luck; and don't hide out from each other now! M. H.

Daughter Will Give Parents Wedding Reception They Missed 25 Years Ago

DEAR ANNE:

My parents will celebrate their twenty-fifth wedding anniversary this coming November. Since they eloped, and did not have a large wedding, my husband and I would like to have a nice reception for them. We had thought of a small reception in one of the hotels with an orchestra, etc.

Do you think that such a reception would be in good taste? If so, would you please advise me regarding invitations, receiving line (if any), cake, menu, etc.

M. G. P., Takoma Park, Md.

I think it's a grand idea and in excellent taste. Invitations can be formal or informal, but I believe the former would be more suitable. You can have them engraved on silver-edged cards, or write them in long hand, spacing the words in the same way an engraver does, on cards or fold-overs.

The wording should be something like this: "In honor of the Twenty-fifth Wedding Anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. Ellis Wilson, Mr. and Mrs. James Marvin request the pleasure of your company on Saturday, September 23, from four until seven o'clock in the Crown Room of the Hotel Ritz-Regis."

At the top of the card, the year in which the wedding took place and the year of the invitation could be stamped: "1925-1950." A good engraver or stationer can be very helpful to you in buying stationary to write the invitations or in planning the engraving.

Likewise, the caterer at the hotel can be helpful with the menu. A wedding cake with silver trim (or a plain white one flanked by silver candlesticks) would be appropriate, as would punch, coffee, tea, little sandwiches, nuts and mints. It all depends on how elaborate you want to be. The cake, punch, and mints would be sufficient. (I saw one attractive anniversary cake topped with a "25" made of icing.)

You and your parents could stand in the receiving line, as well as any other children of the pair. Your husband's role is to mingle with the guests, see that people are introduced and enjoy the party.

You can still use them for bathmats, Petunia. Sew three or four of them together, and stitch them criss-cross several times so they're firm. They'll be fine for everyday use.

Bishop-Brecken

DEAR ANNE:

We are adopting a baby soon and would like to know the proper wording for the announcements. Mrs. N. W. P., Washington.

A leading social engraver here in Washington tells me he uses this form: "Mr. and Mrs. John Smith take pleasure in announcing the adoption of a daughter, Patricia Anne, aged 2 years, 6 months."

From a widely known etiquette book comes this suggestion, for use if legal proceedings are still in progress: "Mr. and Mrs. Allen Jones are happy to announce the arrival and prospective adoption of William, aged 4 months."

Anne answers questions through her column only. Address letters to "Anne," Room 408, The Washington Post, Washington 4, D. C. Names and addresses of questioners will be used, unless specifically requested otherwise.

Tony Cover Girls Like T-Bone Rare

By Richard L. Coe

ARE YOU, TOO, mesmerized by those long, lean ladies of the fashionable advertisements?

Looking at them, do you marvel that those opalescent limbs are flesh, that 'neath the oh-so-delicate veins beats blood, not ice? Can you imagine that those heavy eyes are ever wide open or that those long, tapering fingers ever do more than hold a cigarette, a glass of wine, 20 ounces of Boo Hoo perfume or 50 million bucks worth of diamonds?

Ah, then, friend, move over and list, a verb I use in the Elizabethan sense, not the nautical.

Yesterday I met one of those creatures, and you can blame the dehumanization on the cameras. Patricia Smith, whom you immediately call Pat (immediately, that is, if you're the pushy type), is quite human, eats, listens to the radio, talks and isn't averse to good, rare steak.

This should be considered a relief to you if, like me, you've been wondering where the advertising world gets its aloof females.

Miss Smith, who was through town to talk about her part as a model in "A Life of Her Own," wherein Lana Turner plays a much more important model, even manages to get down to earth about it and modeling in general.

She flattened us all by clearing up the mystery about "high models," which may have been no mystery to you but certainly is in our set. "A high model" doesn't mean the lady's either tall or drunk. It just means she's tony, sophisticated or "smot," as the ads say, or, as we've been saying, dehumanized, unearthly or unapproachable.

"And what is a low model?" asked a determined beer and oysters-r-in-season type.

"There isn't any," explained Pat. "You're just a model or you're a high model.

There didn't seem to be any further to go with that, so we talked about fashions, male and female, the point about female fashions being to keep the girls totally dissatisfied all the time and the males locked in their neckties and tradition so as to be able to afford to pay the bills of females.

Pat's that rare Angeleno, native-born. After school, she took her 5-feet-7 and 125 pounds to a modeling agency, was luckier than most because she caught on, and soon photographers were calling her up. This led to several small roles at M-G-M, notably in the Esther Williams pictures, for which Pat wore the suit she kept locked in her hatbox yesterday afternoon. It also led to a one-line part in the Lana Turner picture (Palace-bound) and the trip she's now making for the studio to convince you that high models are, after all, human.

"Don't miss that line of mine," says Pat. "It's in the modeling office the day after Ann Dvorak leaps to her death. I say: 'Whatever goes up must come down,' and I want you to be sure to hear me say it. It happens real fast."

So next time you wonder what holds those unlikely pale tomatoes together, give a thought to Pat Smith. She even eats hamburgers.

THE WARNER plots a sneak preview tonight at 9 . . . And tomorrow ushers in one of the pictures of the year, "Sunset Boulevard." . . . All I know about the sneak is that it is not "Sunset Boulevard."

WILLIAM MILES' Berkshire Playhouse, Stockbridge, Mass., is making a kindly gesture this week, playing "Smilin' Through" as a tribute to the late Jane Cowl, who co-authored and starred in this standby of the players . . . Walter Prichard Eaton has written a moving piece about Jane for the program, recalling her Juliet and the fact that "actors can leave nothing behind save in the memories of those who saw them."

SAM KELLER, of the National Theater staff, is in for a six-week stay at George Washington University Hospital . . . While a lot of you don't know Sam, he's well known and liked in the town's theater set and we're all missing him . . . The closing of the National to live theater just about broke young Sam's heart, and we're all hoping that when he does recover from his nagging illness, he'll find a niche in the theater world he loves so well and has served so faithfully.

BAILEYS Cross Roads Theater, the red Virginia barn, says that this will be the final week for "Three Men on a Horse," with Grace Pearson standing by to star next week in "Personal Appearance."

ROSE ROBISON COWEN announces that she is closing her Children's Studios of Speech and dramatic arts for one year . . . Mrs. Cowen plans to finish a book on children's drama and to do a manuscript on visual phonetics for children . . . "It's only a year's leave of absence," she explains, "after 18 wonderfully interesting, busy years."

THE OLD SODA FOUNTAIN: Back when you had never heard of her, Lana Turner used to get her chocolate malteds at this soda fountain where, one day, a talent scout for Metro spotted her. While working on "A Life of Her Own," her first picture since her two-year honeymoon, Lana dropped in to see the man behind the fountain and the cop on the beat. Nope, no chocolate malts for Lana. She settled for a coke

MEN

Who have contributed most to our high standards of living have been salesmen.

Washington NEEDS intelligent salesmen.

Washington is the best market in the country.

Intelligent salesmen have little competition here. They are so few.

We have a product recommended by the best authorities in the country. It makes everything it replaces OBSOLETE.

The market is here—the product is here.

Under our guidance you will learn salesmanship the only way by doing.

We have men who make more money in their spare time than their 40-hour job pays, and when you learn to be a good salesman it's a full time job.

If you have a car, and are a permanent resident, come to see me at 7 P.M. sharp, Friday, September 8.

CHAPTER FOUR

Starting-to-school time is not the time to heckle a child.

Six-year-olds have a great many physiological changes going on in their bodies; Fives, Fours, Threes have their hands full just getting the hang of school. It is too bad if both home and school decide: now is the time to straighten this child out. . . . We'll both show him where he gets off.

There is a real temptation to be a reformer. "Say, 'Pardon me' when you interrupt . . . "Stand still and don't fidget so" . . . "Clean your plate. You are too big for that baby-stuff" . . . "Why can't you walk? Must you always run?"

But this whole age range is very aware of doing the right thing. All on its own it is trying hard to curb all its baby ways: the hitting, grabbing, having things NOW. . . . It can't become angelic overnight, but Three-to-Six is really trying.

It is watching what other people do; it does give in now and then; it still hits, but now there is more talking than hitting. This is a time for supreme struggles in self-control, even though they are not always completely successful.

Praise for Accomplishments

Praise for good accomplishments, a generous overlooking of shortcomings, gentle talking reproaches for some of the mistakes will strengthen these efforts. Harshness makes a youngster feel: "What's the use?"

Your youngster may go on a tear the minute he comes home from school. Over-strictness at school, too-much-sitting, too-much-quiet can make him do it. But even when the school day has gone well, many children "put on a show" at the end of the day.

If youngsters could put their feelings into words, life would be simpler for adults. But you have to translate again so that you get their real meaning.

Much of this after-school fussing and whining only means: "Love me . . . Give me some sign that I am still in." Youngsters seem to need some assurance that they still have a warm and special place in the home, even though they have "gone and done it" . . . grown big and started to school.

Attention Is Needed

Of course you have to feel warm about your child to get the real feeling over (This isn't always easy. The end of the school day is the tired end of your day too.)

But if you feel warm, food sometimes can carry your message. A glass of milk and some cookies or a fruit dessert or a pudding—some special treat all set up and waiting plus you to sit down with him—this is a good way of ending whines.

Your youngster doesn't have to demand proof of your love; you give it to him.

Almost all children respond to this. The treat, all ready to eat, seems to say: See . . . We have been thinking of you, too, even though you have been at school.

Before School, Too

This added fussiness can come in the mornings, too. Getting a youngster off to school is no snap—to say nothing of getting friend husband ready, breakfast cooked, and the million and one other chores done.

It is a real complication when the school-going child develops no end of special wishes and demands: "I want to wear my cowboy boots . . . Aw! That shirt; it's no good . . . Do I have to wear a sweater?"

One good recommendation: have a second cup of coffee quick!

But even better: understand why he acts this way. A youngster at school has added on another world. What the other children are wearing, what will give him prestige with them, what will make him stand out like a sore thumb or like a hero: these are all-important.

Frienships are just starting, but even this early it matters tremendously to be like the others and be liked by them.

Boots Can Be Important

Getting dressed isn't just the simple business of putting clothes on. It means measuring the effect ahead of time of how you will look in the eyes of your friends.

This is not too different from the way we adults stand in front of a mirror, wondering for minutes at a time before a big party . . . Except school-beginners whine about it.

Sometimes you need a firm hand: "You must wear your rubbers" . . . "You have to wear this shirt underneath because then you can take your heavier sweater off if it gets too warm" . . . "You can't wear those cowboy boots. They won't be comfortable. Carry them and wear another pair."

But don't insist unless you are very sure of your ground. It is a wonderful feeling to set off to school anticipating the grand entrance you will make. More important really than being just the right degree of warm or the right degree of dry. A little wise giving in, whenever you feel you can, will pay dividends in confident buoyant feelings.

Mother Missing, Baby, 11 Months, Placed in Home

BALTIMORE, Sept. 5 (AP).—An 11-month-old girl whose young mother left her with a baby sitter and never returned was put in a placement home today.

Police have searched unsuccessfully for the young mother since Monday when she left the infant at the home of a baby sitter.

They did trace her to a rented room where Mrs. Diana Godfrey, about 20, had been living with her baby daughter since last Thursday.

There, written on the cover of a book, they found:

"Sorry I had to do this. But there is no other way: I want her to have more than I can give her. I love her and maybe some day I can get her back."

CBS Adds Army

TV Webs Lining Up Football Schedules

By C. E. Butterfield

NEW YORK (AP).—Fall football schedules for the television networks now are fairly well lined up. NBC-TV, still at work on its list, has just about got things set.

Previously Dumont had decided to concentrate again on Notre Dame, CBS-TV to add Army to its roster and ABC-TV to be back with a limited pro schedule.

NBC plans a three-way affair, comprising home games of Pennsylvania at Philadelphia, Harvard at Cambridge, Mass., and Princeton at Princeton, N. J. There are 21 home games on the schedules of these teams.

To carry that many contests, some of which conflict in time, NBC plans to set up regional relays, their extent to be based on interest in the game. Some games will be carried into the Midwest.

After a week's postponement, the television version of the Aldrich family started its second year Sunday night on NBC-TV. Delay was due to decision of sponsor and resulted in a major cast change. The radio version opened Thursday night.

The TV shift came after protests from anti-Communist groups against the appearance of Jean Muir as Mother Aldrich. She denied communistic connections. Her replacement is Nancy Carroll from movies and stage. The video cast is separate from that of the radio. Henry is played by Dick Tyler.

Printed radio circuits, a development of the last war, are being made available to amateur set builders in unit form.

A home experimenter may take a tiny ceramic plate containing as many as eight circuit components and incorporate it into his receiver by making only a few connections. The plates range in size from a half to an inch or so square and are an eighth to a half inch thick.

This development, announced in QST, magazine of the American Amateur Relay League, by Centralab of Milwaukee, Wis., should result in considerable simplification for the home shop set designer. The circuits, comprising various sections of the overall circuit, are embedded in the ceramic plates. The various printed components, made up of resistors and fixed condensers, are connected by silver paths.

The plates have from three to six external connecting wires 2½ inches long. Their number depends upon the particular function of the unit, which can be used in both radio and television receivers. Each one saves a lot of space along with the circuit simplification.

Printed circuits found an important use during the war in walkie-talkies, in guided missiles and in other devices. Since then they have been given expanded application, in certain types of commercial and broadcast equipment.

With completion of its summer assignment as replacement for the Theater Guild on Sunday nights, the NBC Symphony Orchestra is returning to its Saturday schedule on NBC this week-end. Then it will start a series of six fall concerts preliminary to the annual return of Arturo Toscanini on October 21. Milton Katims will conduct the programs originating from New York's Carnegie Hall.

The DISTRICT LINE by Bill Gold

Bill Gold is on vacation. His column today takes the form of a letter to his managing editor.

Dear Boss:

Bernice says my letters about Chicago are a success because never once have I resorted to Time Magazine's favorite description and called it "lusty, gusty Chicago." (But don't think I wasn't tempted. Both adjectives fit perfectly.)

It's a great town, especially for a yokel like me. I love the ridiculous tweet of the police whistles here, the buzzer that automatically warns pedestrians when taxicabs shift into reverse gear, and even the square-wheeled streetcars, undoubtedly the world's noisiest.

A highlight of our stop here was a visit with Bernice's uncle, who is a mop and floor-wax tycoon. Bernice's father died when she was an infant, so I've never heard much about him until now. But Uncle was full of anecdotes about his late brother.

"He was the impetuous type," he recalled. "The first the family knew about his marrying your mother was when we got a telegram reading: 'Have eloped. Please send my wedding present via Western Union.'"

I guess that must have been before the days of sending flowers by wire, because they sent him enough cash for a honeymoon.

We left Chicago late in the afternoon and headed for Detroit. As we went through South Chicago, we passed another tavern with a fetching name: "The Club Gizmo."

The big Rinso box atop the soap plant on our left told us we had crossed the Indiana line; then came the fabulously large oil refineries (Esso and Sinclair) at Whiting. And the Carnegie Steel plant, at Gary.

Mile after mile, our Nation's industrial muscles rippled past our window with impressive monotony. Walter finally mused: "Stalin should be taking this trip instead of us. If he could see these plants, he'd think twice about picking a fight with us."

We wanted to eat at the Hickory Pit in Michigan City, Ind., but found a line there reaching all the way out to the sidewalk. So we ate at the Spaulding Hotel instead and had a nice meal—but as usual had to battle a few flies that kept hovering over our table. We've yet to find a restaurant without flies on this trip.

Incidentally, as we walked back to our car an hour later, there was still a line reaching out to the sidewalk in front of the Hickory Pit. Some day I'll have to go back and find out why.

By the time we crossed into Michigan on Route 112, night had fallen. Traffic was heavy, but it moved at slightly better than 40 miles an hour, so I stayed in line.

Suddenly, about a half-mile ahead, we made out a disturbance of some kind, and the long double lane of autos slowed to a halt.

People were shouting in the darkness ahead, and then we could hear the far-off wail of sirens. Police cars and ambulances sped to the scene, and then we heard sounds of scraping metal and falling glass.

In 10 minutes, one lane of the highway was open again, and we were signalled through. A big truck was parked on the right; a shattered passenger car was off the road at the left, and another wrecked auto was off the road at the right—both facing in the same direction.

The next day's newspapers told us that a car ahead of us had attempted to pass the truck without sufficient clearance. There had been a head-on collision; one person was dead, several others critically injured.

Thereafter we stopped trying to "make time," and set our own speed limits, based on prevailing traffic and road conditions.

We came into Detroit via the Expressway, which moves traffic all the way in to the city limits without cross streets, lights or stops. St. Louis officials should visit Detroit and take notes.

Michigan ave. is a series of neon cafe (saloon) signs, and at 2 a. m. has more life than 14th and F nw. at 10 p. m. These industrial cities never seem to sleep. They work two and three shifts, offer all-night movies and, generally speaking, have little regard for the clock.

We were up bright and early the next day to drive out to the immense Ford plant at River Rouge and then to Willow Run, where Kaiser-Fraser has taken over. On the way back, we stopped at the Edison Institute Museum in Greenfield Village.

"You have only two more hours before the museum closes for the day," the ticket-seller warned us. I smiled my most superior smile and assured him two hours would be plenty.

I was as wrong as a fellow can be. We hadn't seen half of the exhibits when closing time came.

This place has just about everything, in all sizes, shapes, styles and models. The collection of early automobiles is fascinating; the locomotives are breath-taking—everything from Tom Thumb to the latest streamliners. Typewriters? They've got the evolution of the species right before your eyes. Clocks and watches? From all over the world, in more designs than I dreamed existed. Furniture? China? Airplanes? Giant steam power plants? Plows? Glassware? Guns? They've got 'em, by the acre.

Walter trudged up and down the aisles in popeyed wonder, and I think he learned more about his country, past and present, than he's ever learned in a day at school.

"My feet hurt," moaned Bernice when they finally threw us out. "I've walked more than I did at the Chicago Fair."

"But we haven't seen the historic buildings in Greenfield Village yet," protested Walter.

"And what's more, we won't," announced his mother firmly, "until they start supplying motor scooters for the tourists."

Boss, she just isn't cut out for this kind of work. If I ever run a school of journalism, my first requirement for female students will be that they learn to wear flat-heeled shoes.

Bill

P. S. The Cunningham drug stores here have a wonderful gimmick on their coffee cups. The top of the handle is flat, so that you can rest your thumb on it and, without touching the hot cup with your fingers, steady it properly. Even on the first sip, when the cup was too full, I didn't spill any. Isn't science wonderful?

Some 'Green' Marines Sent Into Combat

By Drew Pearson

In the desperate effort to rush more ground troops to Korea, the Marine Corps has assigned green, half-trained high-school boys to combat units due to go into battle the minute they land.

Sen. Wherry

While this unfortunate practice has not been widespread, it has happened so often that Senators have called for an explanation. Nebraska's GOP Senator Wherry, among others, recently told how a 19-year-old Marine reservist was being shipped off to Korea.

"He has received no training except the two weeks, or whatever it is, in the summertime," explained Wherry. "Yet he has been assigned to a combat unit which will go immediately into battle."

"Would he get any training between here and overseas?" the Nebraska Senator inquired of South Dakota's Senator Chan Gurney, who often speaks for the brass hats.

"Perhaps he would get it very quickly at the front," suggested Gurney helplessly.

"Does not the Senator think that the more training a soldier receives, the greater will be his chances that he will not become a casualty?" broke in Pennsylvania's Senator Ed Martin, a former major general who once commanded the 28th Division.

"Certainly," agreed Gurney. "But . . . we are up against it now when we must put boys into front-line service too soon."

Note—As a general practice, Marines are not supposed to be shipped overseas without at least four months' training. In the present confusion, it appears that green reservists have been mixed up with the battle-seasoned veterans.

Chapman at Work

Oscar Chapman has now been Secretary of the Interior nine months, during which he has been so unostentatious that the newspaper-reading public might not have known he was in office. During those nine months, however, Chapman has put across more in his quiet way than dozens of others.

Back in the days of Nebraska's George Norris, headlines flared over the public vs. private power controversy. And only last year, another bitter reclamation debate for a time prevented Reclamation Commissioner Mike Strauss from drawing his salary.

But last month, though obscured by war news, Secretary Chapman quietly reversed the big utility lobby in the Senate and won out on the crux of the power debate—whether the Government shall have the right to distribute power from its own dams, or shall turn the power over to private companies to be distributed.

Two interesting things are behind this story. One is the efficiency of Oscar Chapman, who learned how to operate while training under crusading Harold Ickes. The other is the fact that the big utilities have now placed many of their friends on the Senate Appropriations Committee, such as McCarran of Nevada, Thomas of Oklahoma, Bridges of New Hampshire and McClellan of Arkansas.

Knowing that the Senate committee was stacked against him, Chapman put up no battle when pro-utility Senators hashed up his reclamation appropriations and threw out every cent of the money by which the Government was to build power lines. In fact, Chapman was so complacent that some people thought he had tossed in the sponge.

Very quietly, however, he went over to see Congressman Clarence Cannon of Missouri, chairman of the House Appropriations Committee, in whose district, long before, Chapman had helped build farm cooperative power lines through the Rural Electrification Administration.

Budget Cut Defeated

"Clarence," said Chapman, "the power companies are trying to cut our appropriations."

"The hell they are," exclaimed the gentleman from Missouri. "I'll see to that. Just make me out a list of the appropriations they are trying to cut out."

Chapman prepared the list. And when the joint conference between the House and Senate met to iron out appropriation differences, Congressman Cannon pulled Chapman's list out of his pocket. Without identifying the author, he announced:

"We can save time, gentlemen, by skipping the following items."

He read the list of transmission lines which the private utilities had persuaded the Senate to eliminate. "I'm not even going to discuss these items. Therefore we can pass on to something else."

Senator Pat McCarran of Nevada immediately hit the ceiling. A stanch utility booster, he fussed, fumed and argued. But Cannon stood firm. Finally McCarran exploded. Going to the door he turned and said:

"Good-bye, sir, and I'll see you in hell!"

"You may be there," replied Cannon coolly, "but you won't see me."

In the end, Chapman won every appropriation he asked for, including such controversial transmission lines, which the Senate at first vetoed, as the Havre-Shelby line at Fort Peck, Mont., the Canyon Ferry-Great Falls line on the Missouri Basin Project, the Brighton-Bush power line on the Colorado-Big Thompson Project.

LONDON, Sept. 5 (AP).—King George and Queen Elizabeth plan a royal tour of Australia and New Zealand in 1952, Buckingham Palace announced today. Illness of the King caused cancellation of a tour to Australia and New Zealand in 1949. Details of the 1952 trip are still to be arranged. It will probably be made during the first half of the year.
